Skin Studio Becomes the First Micro-Relaxation Spa in San Francisco

BellaPellé Skin Studio, a premiere skin care studio in downtown San Francisco, has become the first micro-relaxation spa in San Francisco. BellaPellé caters to the hardworking and hard playing lifestyles of people who live, work, and play in the San Francisco Bay Area by offering premium skin care and beauty services that accommodate their schedules and busy lives. They focus on creating a studio environment that allows their clients to sit back, kick off their heels, and rejuvenate for a few minutes; while taking care of their skin and beauty needs, but without having to completely disconnect from their busy day. BellaPellé Skin Studio micro-relaxation offerings include:

- Being conveniently located.
- Early and late appointments.
- A bright, open lounge with magazines, featured art, and comfy seating.
- Free wifi plus a computer for clients to use.
- A no "shhhhh" policy, so clients are welcome to use their phone, chat with their skin care specialist, or other clients.

"Our clients really take to our cheery environment and love being able to finish a business call, chat with a friend, or laugh with their skin care specialist while they get their legs waxed or a facial," said Shelley Costantini, renowned skin care expert, waxing artist, and founder of BellaPellé Skin Studio. "And many of our clients just want to unwind, sip a BellaTini, and surf the web or listen to their iPod. Even though we encourage clients to speak freely we've never had an issue with it being too noisy."
