Letter Before Legal Action

You have limited my access to my account and denied me access to my funds on the pretext of non-existent "European Union money laundering regulations".

As requested, I have provided you with:

Proof of address;

Proof of bank account;

Proof of identity

You continue to hold my funds on a pretext of European Regulations WHICH DO NOT EXSIST.

If you fail to restore access to my funds within THIS WORKING DAY I will begin a claim against PayPal (Europe) Ltd and PayPal(Europe)S.A.R.L in the British Small Claims Court.

For clarity: I am entitled under multiple Treaties as a citizen of a European Member State to prosecute legally any person or entity wherever based who offers services to me in my country of domicile.

I will therefore claim:

1) That you have fraudulently and illegally claimed privity in private contracts made between myself and other third parties vis: denying me access to funds supplied to me by unconnected Third Parties for goods and services rendered to them by me, vis

2) That you have fraudulently re - invested my funds against my wishes and fraudulently profited by way of earned interest on my funds during the period they were denied me by you, vis: [ Fraud Act 2006, 4:1: (b) & (c)] and [Fraud Act 2006, 4:2 ] and will challenge you to place evidence to the contrary before the Court by way of independently verified accounts.

3) That no contract of use between us that you may cite as relevant is legally binding where it runs contrary to British Law, vis. [Unfair Terms in Consumer Contracts Regulations 1999] and in claiming such in defence of your actions you are seeking to deceive both me and the Court

4) That you falsely and fraudulently claim to be holding my funds on a pretext of my criminality, and will challenge you to identify to the Court under which, if any, European Union statutes you purport to be able to withhold funds without first having obtained a Court Warrant from the relevant authorities.

5) Damages for loss of use.

6) Costs of prosecution

7) Costs incurred by me as a Litigant in Person

8 Interest such as the Court sees fit to award

Kind Regards
