

Compass trestles

Matthew Hilton

The Compass trestles are a study in elegance and balance. Made from steamed solid beech, they are designed with practicality and stability in mind. The Compass consists of three component parts that fit together to create a sturdy table base. The top height is adjustable and can fit the needs of a table, desk or workbench. The Compass is notable for its finely drawn details, tapered legs that ascend into a mid-leg curve and rounded neoprene pads that secure the tabletop. The Compass comes as a pair, a separate range of tabletops in different sizes and finishes are available to accompany them. Available in a natural or stained black finish.
