SAMOVARS

IMPERIAL RUSSIAN SAMOVAR WITH 24CT GOLD PLATING

The samovar, Russian name for "self brewer", originated in Russia and the Middle-East in the 18th century. This large metal recipient that heats the water and maintains the tea's temperature formerly worked with a charcoal heater. Traditionally, the small teapot set atop is used to keep a tea concentrate, mixed with hot water from the base of the samovar in the teacup to obtain a lighter infusion. The TWG Tea samovars, inspired by original antique designs come with porcelain handles and a fine mirror polish finish and are made of high-grade 18/10 stainless steel to assure the quality of the tea infusion. Between tradition and modernity, Samovars are practical and decorative objects always appreciated by tea lovers.
