ABOUT KYANDREIA JONES
Kyandreia Jones is a Posse Miami Scholar and a Creative Writing major at Hamilton College in Clinton, New York. She was born and raised in South Florida. When she thinks of home she likes to muse that she is in a “sunshine state of mind.” Jones' poetry and prose has been published in various college literary publications and magazines such as Red Weather, Grasping Roots, The Black List Journal and The Underground. Opportunities like having her first short story “At Home” published by Living Spring Publishers in Stories Through the Ages, College Edition 2017 inspired Jones to take her writing to new heights. Working for Choose Your Own Adventure has been the highlight of Jones’ career and she cannot wait to see what other adventures await her! Jones’ support system/biggest fans include: her family, friends, the Hamilton community, Professors Jane Springer and Tina Hall and her posse (Betsy, Ram, Robbyn, Pascal, Edsel, Maria, Dairys, Annalie, Wilhelgyne, and her Posse mentor Katheryn “Kale K” Doran). Jones values reading, writing, laughing, and promoting universal kindness.

Tonight is the full moon, and the first time you get to transform into a “real” werewolf. Your grandparents, Granwolf and Grampwolf, are also werewolves and might be able to show you the ropes. Who—or what—will you find in the woods if you go for a nighttime run with your grandwolfparents? Maybe you should play it safe and go to werewolf school first. You might help setup the big Wolf Dance or make lots of new werewolf friends. Should you hang out with your best friend Vammy the vampire? Will you learn how to run and howl with the pack or will you be left behind?
