HANDS ON

Your hands have it pretty easy most of the year, but come winter they've got to be dressed for battle. And they'll need more than gloves. Because your mitts have the fewest and smallest oil glands in your body, leaving them exposed for more than a few seconds allows the dry, icy winds to suck the life right out of them. Chapped, swollen, dry, red hands not only look strange, they turn simple things like showering, lifting weights, and holding a steering wheel into painful activities. But with the right products, you can get the upper hand on winter dryness.

Matt Bell

1. Buckler's Chapped Skin Remedy

No man is perfect, and sometimes that means on icy days or nights you've left your gloves at home. Formulated with shea butter, chamomile, calendula, and aloe juice, this thick and heavy stuff will ease the pain and speed up the skin's ability to repair itself. $22 / 4 oz.; TheMotley.com

2. Jack Black Industrial Strength Hand Healer

Ten NFL teams keep this stuff stocked in the locker room to help players keep their hands in top shape. Made with moisturizing macadamia nut oil and glycerin, nourishing vitamins A and E, and natural antiseptic eucalyptus, it absorbs quickly for daily use. $45 / 16 oz.; GetJackBlack.com

3. Malin and Goetz Hand Wash

Hand washing strips skin of its few protective oils, but Malin and Goetz's entire line of hand washes are full of natural glycerin and protein amino acids to regenerate them. The Rum wash is lightly scented and later this year, the brand launches their ultra-moisturizing Cannabis hand wash. $20 / 8.5 oz.; MalinandGoetz.com

4. Aesop Resurrection Rinse-Free Hand Wash

Frigid temperatures may kill moisture in your hands, but they don't eliminate bacteria. Traditional hand sanitizers dry out skin, so be prepared with this one that's stocked with moisturizing elements like lavender and castor oil. $10 / 1.7 oz.; Aesop.com

AFTER YOU'VE TAKEN CARE OF DRY, CHAPPED HANDS, POLISH YOUR PAWS UP WITH THESE TOOLS THAT YOU CAN USE YEAR ROUND.

5. Redecker Nail Brush

No one wants to be seen with mystery gunk under his nails. Lather up with some soap and then lightly brush from side to side with this handy tool to scrub the dirt away. $10; FxcBarber.com

6. Japonesque Nail Wave Clipper

This is what you should be using to clip your nails if you want to make sure they're tidy, but not too short. You're not trying to declaw yourself after all. $12.50; Beauty.com

7. Sofiner Small Cuticle Clippers with Leather Case

These things might look like they belong in the operating room, but they're meant to clear away the dead, hard skin around the base of your fingernail. Afterwards, wash and moisturize. $30; FxcBarber.com

HANGOVER HELPERS

If you choose to imbibe this holiday party season, you'll need to be prepared for the consequences the morning after. There is, of course, coffee and aspirin for your throbbing head, but what about the rest? A night of excess can certainly take its toll on your skin, your hair, the whole package. That's why the right products for post-party damage control are so vital.

Rohto Redness Relief Eye Drops

These cooling, moisturizing drops stimulate and lubricate your eyes, eliminating that bleary, red-eyed look the next morning.

$6.49 / 0.4 Oz.; Walgreens.com

Yüli Cellular Lip Conditioner

Boozing can lead to chapped lips, especially in the cold, so give them some love with this serum. The nourishing blend of botanicals is so fresh that Yüli only bottles this elixir after you place an order.

$26 / 0.34 oz.; YuliSkincare.com

Old Spice Afterhours

Old Spice isn't for grandpa anymore. Wear this antiperspirant and deodorant and you'll keep your swagger well after you shut down the party.

$4.79 / 2.6 oz.; Drugstore.com

Aveda Peppymint

Cottonmouth and morning breath are no match for the cooling peppermint essential oil in this pocket-friendly visit.

$8.50 / 0.2 oz.; Aveda.com

Rituals Ice Shower Gel

Made with organic bamboo and Japanese mint, this soap's cooling powers will help calm your aching muscles and soothe your twisted tendons.

$15 / 6.8 oz.; Barneys.com

Ursa Major Essential Face Wipes

Stash one of these oil-erasing, skin brightening cleansing pads in your pocket before going out so you can hold your head high on the walk of shame home the next morning.

$24; UrsaMajor.com

Lab Series Max LS Instant Eye Lift

One look at someone's eyes and you can tell they've been up all night. Lab Series' molecular Age-Less Complex helps stop dark circles and heavy bags from giving away your secret.

$45 / 0.5 oz.; LabSeries.com

Revision Skincare

Brightening Facial Wash

Wash the night's impurities off your face with blemish-bashing extracts of vitamin C, licorice, white tea and vitamin E.

$24 / 7 oz.; SkinMedix.com
