JABBERWOCKY REVIEW!

The forest Somewhat spiritual throughout the sunny day.

A large cluster of trees, some fallen. But those who stand, proudly shows its leaves to those who wanders through. Our group. Our army.

With unquestionable courage, and sharp sticks for weapons. Our soldiers had only death to fear. Led by our determined knight and his not so determined friend, we travelled through forest.

Encountering animals and beings of another world. The magical essence for the performance was captured beautifully, displaying characters of all kinds, and every kind. The comedic gestures, provided by the tweedle-Twing accompanied the heroic story of a man's love.

Exquisite decorations majestically posed themselves in the places that were easily noticeable. But the most important thing I must write about, is that the entire performance kept with the natural sense of the wilderness Festival. And this amazingly had large, realistic puppets which could be related to the characters in Alice in Wonderland. Overall, a stunning performance well acted by every actor and puppeteer! Brave!

MONARCHY REIGNS SUPREME: THE CROWN JEWELS SLAMS THE REPUBLIC (IN THE FACE)

Wow! What a day at the House of Fairy Tales. The great annual ice cream eating competition saw some outrageous licks, some subtle flicks and some massive gulps. So much was crunched and so much munched that it was hard to determine a winner. But demonstrating great skill, technique and the eating power of a large horse, was our winner, Laura!

Could the day get any more dramatic? Yes. Emphatically yes. Monarchy vs Republic. Subject vs Citizen. Semi naked wrestler vs semi naked wrestler.. Crown Jewels vs The Citizen.

The larger than life 'Crown

Jewels' has been breaking hearts, arms and records all across the UK with his wrestling tour 'the procession'. Facing him, The Citizen, a republican waif straight from the streets of Florence. Cries of 'my tag is tied too tight' and 'get off my face' rang out across the HOFT arena. It was muddy. It was painful. Boy it hurt.

Would it ever end? Ouch. Crash. Ah.

With the elegance of a lame dog and the force of a red bull on red bull, the Crown Jewels slammed The Citizen. Victory! Monarchy rules. Republicans suck it. All hail King George lord of the Earth, Space and a bucket.

FRAMING NATURE

Environmental artist Stephen Whitehead has brought a human camera to the festival, to help us look at the beautiful landscape at Wilderness. By looking through the view finder children framed tiny moments in nature and experience the moment in time. The device allows the viewer to take snap shots with their own eyes to remember first hand. The Human camera captures anything from seeing shadows on grass, or leaves on the trees swaying in the warm summer breeze. It really is the best way to capture the moment and see for themselves the little wonders of nature.

CHARLES DICKENS BEAMS BACK FROM THE FUTURE

Master storyteller and journalist extraordinaire Charles Dickens has sent his favourite characters to The House Of Fairy Tales all the way from Victorian London. Marley's ghost, Miss Havesham and miserly skinflint Ebenezer Scrooge all appeared to read from the classic ghost story A Christmas Carol.

Witnesses heard spooky rattling chains, doors and windows banging in the wind, and spine chilling howls from the spirit world as Ebenezer shook with fear. If you want to illustrate your own Victorian ghost story use the page here, kindly provided by The Dicken's Museum, as it would have been seen in the original magazines that produced Dicken's classic tales over 150 years ago.

For more ghost stories look out for the Charles Dickens Museum appearing all over Wilderness this weekend. or visit them in London all year round. www.dickensmuseum.com

ON THE GRAPEVINE WITH RISE 'N' SHINE

HERE at Wilderness festival we're having a whale of a time, literally – as yesterday we had the pleasure of interviewing Big Head, the first whale to learn to walk. Big Head showed us a variety of different ambulatory styles, from the gentle stroll to the brisk stride. Unfortunately she has not yet learnt to speak so we couldn't find out how she came to achieve this 'feat', despite trying for several hours. Nevermind, plenty of other things happened.

STRONGEST MAN IN THE WORLD

That's right, the first day of the festival saw us meet Dexter, the strongest man in the world. He first realized he was so very strong when he tried to pick up one of his friends and found it ridiculously easy. He then picked up another friend at the exact same time, and the rest is history. And sport, as he competed in last year's Olympic games and won gold in all categories. Dexter was not shy about his achievements, saying: 'I am the best in all the world, no one will beat me in a million years! I'm only 6 years old but everyone always thinks that I am 12'.

We asked Dexter about how he stays so fit and healthy. In this exclusive interview, we can reveal that he eats 5 apples, 6 bananas and 100 strawberries every 3 to 4 days. He also exercises constantly – even when he's asleep.

We were also blessed with a rare interview with hot new boyband 3 Direction. As well as their new single 'In The Park', inspired by a recent trip to the local park, viewers were stunned into silence by their new rap about drinking tea. After a short pause for the magic to settle, the phones were literally off the hook! Mainly with complaints from fans of other boyband 1 Direction, with suggestions and allegations such as 'Why don't you just stop' and 'You're just a cheap imitation of the best band in the world'. Two irate members of the 1 Direction fan club marched into the studio and demanded an explanation. But don't panic! Before it all turned nasty we collectively decided that the problem was just in the name, and that to avoid any further distress 1 Direction should change their name with immediate effect. We have sent them a polite note, and will keep you up to date with any further developments.

That's all for now!
Toodlepip!

BILLY BADMAN SIGHTED AT WILDERNESS!!

Our top reporter Rudy sighted the notorious Billy Badman yesterday next to the woods; Billy was seen running from lots of dark shadows, one was tall and was wearing a top hat, followed by lots of small, fuzzy haired shadows. "He was wearing a blue Adidas Tracksuit, a backwards cap, and Blue & White trainers" Said Rudy. We asked several people roaming the festival grounds, here's what some of them said, "I was walking through the woods when I heard a thud, a meow, a rustle in a nearby tree, a crash, then Billy shouting 'I'll get you Cat Kicking Maniac!'" Said Sam. Thom

Said, "I saw a figure in a blue tracksuit running through the woods, he had really baggy trousers and kept tripping over them." We are offering a £10,000,000,000 Prize to anyone who can find the cat kicking maniac or Billy Badman, we are looking for Willy Wonka (A.K.A The Cat Kicking Maniac) Dressed in a long purple robe and wearing a black top hat, with lots of dwarf like people with green hair following him, he is about 5'9 tall. Or Billy Badman, dressed in a blue Adidas tracksuit with baggy trousers and a backwards cap.

BEEEHAVEE!!!!

By Beekeeper Extrordinaire, Holly Leonard-Morgan.

Over at the Square Peg Vintage world of stories tent yesterday there were reports of mad hatter hats, foraging walks and a sighting of Steve Benbow, the urban beekeeper. I caught up with him between workshops to ask him a few questions along with my brother Rory and Sister Isabella.

Holly: Where was your first hive?

Steve: The roof of my council flat in Bermondsey 15 years ago.

Holly: Do you like wasps?

Steve: NO! But they're important pollinators. All pollinators are important, not just bees.

Holly: What's the greatest number of times you've been stung?

LET DOWN YOUR GOLDEN HAIR

Hey my little Gossips! Word on the HOFT vine is that Rapunzal, after being saved from her scary dark tower has had a haircut! She's feeling a lot lighter and inspiring other girls to also cut their hair.

HUMPTY DUMPTY PIGGY

Humpty dumpty has put up his friends, the three litte pigs while they try and get their houses up and running. Our HOFT reporters designed high security houses for our scared pink friends. Sonny and Charlotte put wheels on their houses so they could just up and leave when the wolf came a huffing and puffing! Other's opted for a pigtail scanner and poisonous spikes!

HAMSTER SNOW MORE

We also learnt some shocking news, that Snow White has turned into a hamster! A pink fluorescent one that is!

Thanks HOFTIANS for all your gossip and designs!!!!

The Flying Seagull Project

They say they just make a lot of noise. We say they put on an amazing show and teach you circus tricks as well! The Flying Seagulls travel all over the world, raising money with for disadvantaged children. Currently they are focusing all their love and talent towards Romania. Bash, the Captain of this awe-inspiring troupe, wants to spread Light, Laughter and Love GLOBALLY! See them in action daily in the kids section and give your very best HOFT salute. Mums can get a massage while kids get their face painted for a donation all throughout the day!

MAKE AND DO WITH ASTRID AND OLIVER

TO CELEBRATE THE FIRST MARRIAGE IN SPACE, HERE'S HOW TO MAKE A ROCKET TO THE PLANET OF LOVE, WHERE VERY THINGS MADE OF ICE CREAM AND SWEETS. WE KNOW THIS BECAUSE OUR ROCKET ENGINEERS TOLD US!!!

1. You will need tape, card, orange paper, silver foil, felt pens, string and a hair from a moon donkeys ear.

2. make a tube with the card for the body, then add fins and a nose cone with the orange paper.

3. assemble your rocket pieces and add silver foil to protect it from cosmic rays and orange fire balls, to propel it into space.

4. Unless your rocket doesn't levitate immediately help it with string to suspend it from any nearby tree, ceiling, parent or passing astronaut.

SOON YOU'LL BE BLASTING YOUR WAY TO THE PLANET OF LOVE FOR SWEETS AND ICE CREAM. NOM NOM NOM- WOOSH!

We learnt that henna comes from a plant. It is most common on indian brides at their weddings. All over there body mostly on their arms and hands.

MILLIONS OF MINIONS

Minions are planning to take over the world you have to watch out! Their evil screams will make you look at them and make you look at them and make you think their sweet they are really NOT!

with professor BUCK JOLY DE LOTBINIERE

THE PROFESSOR AND HIS MAGICAL TIME MACHINE

Join me as we travel to different countries and foreign lands on my rug, a TIME MACHINE! But it can only go to a year with the same day and month as the present.

Bonjour!!

Today my brave adventurers travelled first to late 18th century Paris, France. Where we witnessed the execution of the cruel king of France, Louis XVI.

Our next stop was Time Square in New York, where the whole city gathered in the street to celebrate the end of World War II. It was a joyous spectacle as men and women sang and danced in the name of peace.

The final leg of the journey was to space as we were honoured to see witness the first wedding in space. A Russian Astronaut married his model bride while orbiting the Earth! That's what a call a Super Galactic do

POPCORN

The dance word of the day was POPCORN! If we catch you not dancing, we'll be getting you on stage for your very own solo dance. Don't be a wally be a superstar dance fiend!!!

The dance break code for Today's show is, GEKO!!!!!! As soon as you hear the word GEKO you have to dance and prance around like a loveable lizard!

THE UNICORN SPOTTERS CLUB

Neil Fennel has reported that all of his rubber shoes have been eaten, or at least stolen, from the sanctuary area. Rumour has it that a unicorn is on the loose but do not fear, they're very friendly! The unicorn spotters training camp recruited over 150 new members on Friday and they are all on the look out for our horned friends who enjoy eating rubber-soled shoes, (among other things)! If you'd like to join the training camp and become an official unicorn spotter, just come and say hello- we're in the kids area, see you there!
