

Honey Jar Spell

©2009 Storm Faerywolf

A Honey Jar is a traditional spell to “sweeten up” someone toward you; that is to say, to improve their opinion of you. A difficult boss, co-worker, family member, or acquaintance can be subtly influenced by a honey jar and is a positive way to assist you in interpersonal dealings with those individuals who are aggressive or causing us trouble.

Items needed:

- A small jar with a metal lid
- Some honey
- A petition paper (if the spell is to be worked on another person, include their name and birthdate, along with any personal concerns you are able to obtain.)
- A small candle of the appropriate color
- A dressing oil, such as influence, peaceful home, or money draw, depending on your goal
- Some sea salt

Begin by crafting your petition paper. Enclose any personal concerns before folding it up. Fill a jar most of the way with honey. With your fingers, scoop out some of the honey from the jar and put it in your mouth. Savor the sweet flavor and say:

“Honey sweet upon my tongue
Shall make <name of person> sweet to me.”

Place the petition paper inside the jar and fill the rest of the way with honey. Close the lid tightly and place upon your altar or working area.

With the sea salt mark out a circle on the altar around the jar.

Dress your candle with the appropriate oil and place upon the top of the jar. Light the candle with a heartfelt prayer:

“Honey sweet upon my lips
Fear and anger you shall eclipse.
Sweeten up their disposition and dissolve their opposition.”

Allow the candle to burn all the way down. After it has burned you may continue burning new dressed candles on top of the jar for as long as you wish the spell to last. Remember that honey spells are notoriously slow, so be patient!