PARTY PEOPLE

With socialite Henry Conway

LET'S HEAR IT FOR THE BOYS

Jimmy Choo's London Collections Men party was a smorgasbord of fame, beauty and good suits. Mark Ronson took to the decks at No 5 Hereford Street, while models Oliver Cheshire and David Gandy swapped tips on perfecting 'blue steel'. Even so, everyone was out-cooled by Samuel L Jackson. In the gaming room, Louis Smith taught me how to play Blackjack, upon which I lost the lot, even the shirt off my back.

What we drank: Pol Roger champagne.

What we ate: if there was a canapé floating round, it rightly avoided my hips.

Clockwise from top left: Mark Ronson; Tinie Tempah and Thandie Newton; Jason Boateng; David Gandy

COCKTAILS & CUPCAKES

Cocktail club Mr Foggs is the new place to be seen, which is why Johnnie Walker Blue Label held its summer bash at this velvet-lined delight. It was wall-to-wall society types, and while Ben Fogle and Olivia Inge were happy to chat, all eyes were on new power couple Donna Air and James Middleton. The Harbord sisters may have looked delicious, but James was handing out cupcakes and, frankly, a man who bakes has me at 'hello'.

What we drank: Johnnie Walker Blue Label Blue Balloons.

Henry with Katya Virshilas

HARBOUR DELIGHTS

Here I am on top of a rather windy Chelsea Harbour penthouse, hosting a party for ethical jewellery brand Chavin. My co-host was the Ambassador of Peru, so the temptation to serve Ferrero Rocher was overwhelming. MTV's Lilah Parsons talked festivals all night, while Princess Tessy of Luxembourg gave the event a serene air, coming to support the SOS Children charity.

What we drank: pisco sours.

What we ate: ceviche (the thing in London right now, or so Mario Testino tells me).

WEST IS BEST

It was all about summer love at Cheska Hull's 28th birthday bash at Retro Feasts in Embassy, Mayfair. The Made In Chelsea star looked fab, having just been whisked away to Ibiza by boyfriend Mike Menary. Fellow MIC-ers Andy Jordan and Louise Thompson zoomed up on matching skateboards (cute), and hurrah for Louise, who has rid herself of that over hair-gelled Spencer Matthews.

Left: James Middleton and Donna Air. Right: Cheska Hull; Andy Jordan, Louise Thompson and Ollie Locke

Photos: xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx