

The look is... AZTEC PRINT

Gaby Soutar

Introduce pattern into your wardrobe this season, with a little Aztec or African print, as seen on the Spring/Summer 2012 catwalks for Burberry Prorsum and Donna Karan. Jessica Alba, right, has got the idea, wearing a single trophy piece - in this case, a tailored MiH blazer - in a vibrant, multicoloured fabric. Sport yours alongside pared-down basics, like these Zara jeans and our irresistibly quirky goldfish print top by Dorothy Perkins.

My life in clothes

Madeleine Thompson

Fashion designer

■ What's the last piece of clothing you bought? The last important piece I bought was my wedding dress from Chloe. It is magical and I'm already scheming of ways I can wear it again.
■ Best-ever bargain? A beautiful butter-soft leather bag from the souk in Marrakech.
■ Who has great style? Poppy Delevigne always looks beautiful. Whether she is on the red carpet or dressed down for the weekend, she's ever so stylish.
■ Name your favourite high street shop. One of them is Jane Davidson in Edinburgh. Also, Austique in London has some fabulous brands.

■ What are you addicted to buying? As I recently married, I would have to say stationery embossed with my new initials.
■ Any fashion disasters you'd care to tell us about? I grew up in the Nineties when we were quite grungy - there were a lot of checked shirts with jeans and Dr Martens. It didn't really work for me.
■ What's your favourite item in your wardrobe? I live in my own Madeleine Thompson maxi dresses, and this season it has to be the Lula dress. I can wear this all day at work and dress it up for any evening event.

Thompson's SS12 collection will be available to purchase on My Wardrobe (www.my-wardrobe.com) and Net a Porter (www.net-a-porter.com) from the end of February. www.madeleine-thompson.com
