Singapore jewelry brand Carrie K. Artisan Jewellery will unveil its new jewelry collection inspired by the works of Jackson Pollock at Tranoï F/W 2013, starting tomorrow in Paris .

The “A Beautiful Mess” collection, which is handcrafted in Istanbul, puts the spotlight on the shapes of what might otherwise be considered unsightly splatters and careless spills, with a vibrant array of leather necklaces, cuffs, and earrings celebrating disorder and irregularity.

“I’ve always been fascinated by the beauty of imperfection,” says designer Carolyn Kan, “The idea of wearing a mess instead of cleaning it up made me smile.”

The leather Splat pieces are double-sided and resemble accidental paint splatters in vibrant splashes of cyan, lavender, and pink. Splat comprises a brooch and earrings, and reversible necklaces and lariat. The leather Spill pieces are designed to “drip” down the neck and wrist when worn. They come in brightly colored patent leather on one side and metallic colors on the other.

The leather pieces, most reversible, are made in Istanbul.

Carrie K. Artisan Jewellery is available online at CarrieKRocks.com as well as several retailers in Singapore.
