Dear Ian,

The mess created by pigeons perched on high reaches, became an acute problem. Droppings on the entrance steps needed to be washed away each week. A farmer – (Steve O'Connor) who had achieved successful pigeon control by installing a magnetic pole in his barn, fitted that device, out from the tower of the Basilica. The result is astonishing. The pigeons no longer despoil the building's front facade, and the steps below are no longer the recipient of bird droppings.

We are delighted with the Magnetic System's effectiveness, and thoroughly recommend it.

Yours faithfully,

John Foley
