The Boulder Beta has handles under the side compression straps to help position the bag onto your motorcycle.

Attaching the Boulder Beta

1-Set the Boulder Beta on the passenger section of the seat.

2-Thread the front mounting straps through the passenger peg brackets. FIG2 & FIG3

3-Thread the Rear Straps around the grab handles or rear rack. Rack mount shown (The rear mounting has various mounting options depending on your motorcycle). FIG6

FIG7 Rear mounting options

*For more security thread the rear mounting straps through a rear rack or grab handle and through the 2”D-rings on the side compression straps and back to the buckle FIG7

4-Tighten all front and rear mounting straps snug.

5-Tighten the 2 top compression straps; start with the top front then top rear.

6-Tighten the side compression straps on each leg.

To Attach an additional bag on the rear

1-Clip the duffel straps to the 4 loose 2”D-rings on the rear of the bag (next to each top compression strap).
2-Set duffel on the rack or rear of bike, thread the loose end of the strap through D-rings on the Renegade Duffel and through the buckle.

For maximum security thread the duffel straps through slots in a top rack then around the duffel to the buckle

3-Tighten both duffel straps snug.

The Inside Pouch

Inside pouch purposes:

1- It's a pocket under the main opening for quick access items.

2- It's an internal compression pocket, connect the buckles on the interior pouch and tighten (this releases tension on the main zipper making the Boulder Beta easier to zip closed).

3- It's removable to bring the pocket with you. Unclip the buckles and undo the hook and loop tabs to take it away.

Packing Hints

1- Loosen the top and side compression straps to make access easier.

2- The Boulder Beta includes 3 liners one for each leg and one for the center.

3- Pack your sleeping bag in the bottom of the exhaust side leg. Pack your tent or stove in the bottom of the non-exhaust side leg.

4- Pack your tools in the center bottom of the bag.
