

Reviews

Just like the coaching profession is a force to change the world, so this book gives us a reason to review all we have ever known about God and create a personal connection to the highest source of power in that unlimited universe out there. And that, dear readers, will change the world!

Christine Martin, MCC

ICF Master Certified Coach

"Having established an elaborate historical context, Jayne gracefully reminds us, through vivid personal and professional vignettes, of the ultimate truth – that fulfillment is within and awaits our arrival."

Rick Carson, Author of Taming Your Gremlin and A Master Class in Gremlin Taming

"Dr. Gardner does a wonderful job of guiding the reader to discover their internal God. Although readers may not be going through exactly the same situation as the client she describes in the book, there are aspects of his journey that anyone can relate to and find meaningful to situations in their life."

As a coach, I find this process useful for my clients seeking to find meaning in their lives.

This book is the result of Dr. Gardner's extensive experience, vast fund of knowledge and wisdom, and is a gift that will serve as a spiritual guide for seekers of God within us and help us discover the true meaning of life."

Om Prakash, Ph. D.

Corporate Wellness Coach

Clinical Psychologist

Author: From Change to Transformation & Beyond :Maintaining Balance on the Fast Track

Publications

Gardner, Jayne (2002), How to Change Other People, Author House: Bloomington, In.

Kottman, T.T. & Gardner-Warlick, J. (1989). Adlerian Play Therapy: Practical Considerations. Individual Psychology, 45(4), 443-446.

Kottman, Terry & Warlick, Jayne. Adlerian Play Therapy: Practical Considerations. The Journal of Humanities Education and Development, Vol. 28, Number 3, March 1990, p. 125.

Warlick, Jayne. (1989). Family Environment, Life Style & Control Factors of Depressed Adolescents and Their Parents. Dissertation Abstracts.

Kottman, Terry & Warlick, Jayne (1994). Adlerian Play Therapy: Practical Considerations. Techniques in Adlerian Psychology. Accelerated Development, Washington, D.C.

Gardner, Jayne. Instilling Healthy Values. Link Vol. 12, Number 4, Mar/Apr., 1982, p.12.