Scania R Series Tanker - W H Malcolm

We're used to seeing W H Malcolm trucks so to see this famous Scottish haulier's name on a tanker is an interesting departure. Our 1:76 scale tanker is so full of detail. The W H Malcolm signature red and two-tone blue colour scheme is the background for gold and red lettering printed boldly on the tanker sides, along with the Scottish lion rampant and minute hazard warnings. The patriotic emblem also appears on the rear of the tanker and behind the cab window. The tractor unit, also in the same colour scheme, has a white roof with vehicle identity L100 printed on it, repeated on the front. Brookfield, the home of W H Malcolm, appears above the windscreen. The authentic detailing on this model is remarkable, including indicator and brake lights, chevron effect along the front bumper and finely lined out red arches above the front wheels. Registered MX06 BZK, the tanker has a red chassis and red rear wheel inserts, while four of the front wheels are finished in red/white.

For any collector specialising in Scottish liveried models and W H Malcolm in particular, this latest release is a fine addition.

also features a high level of detail with bumpers and matt black rear wheel arch protectors.

Bentley Mulsanne - Moonbeam

Our Oxford Bentley Mulsanne is modelled on the car reintroduced by Bentley from 2010 onwards as part of their luxury car class.

The beautiful ghostly silver Moonbeam exterior colour scheme has a cleverly executed satin black mask spray process applied to the grilles. Note too the Bentley badge to the front and rear of the car. The interior is finished with pale grey seating.

all the detail we associate with the Morris 1000: the Morris grille, the Morris badges printed in silver. It really is a little gem!

Mini 1275GT Reynard Metallic

This newly tooled 1:76 scale Mini is up close and very personal as in real life JCY 646N was proudly owned by our very own Taff! All the detail of the original is here, the red gold metallic colour scheme with white sporty lettering along the sides and lots of chrome. The interior is a sober brown and the chassis is black.

The Mini has universal appeal in all its guises and this one will be a favourite. We bet Taff has one on his desk, too!

Tricycle Van - Electricity

Dating from the 1930s, the Tricycle Van was seen on general service duties right into the 1950s. After the recent release of the Gas and Coke Service liveried van, we now see this unusual vehicle as used by Central Sussex Electricity Ltd who are advertising the hire of their electric wash boilers. The colourful graphics on the side reveal all! Decorated in red with black trim, the van is registered VMN 628 and the white lettering indicates the company operating in Haywards Heath, complete with telephone number. Masked silver porthole windows feature on the back doors and the model is finished off with a single light above the front wheel.

Whitby Mondial Ice Cream Van - Wall's Ice Cream

Newly tooled in 1:76 scale, this vehicle is already part of Oxford's 1:43 scale series where it also appears in Wall's Ice Cream livery.

Whitby Morrison was founded in 1962 by Bryan Whitby and now has a worldwide customer base from over 60 countries. Today, three generations of the family run the business and each van is a unique and bespoke build. The Whitby Mondial in particular encompasses a sleek modern design in keeping with their 21st Century image.

The lively colour scheme features all-over graphics against a bright red colour base, illustrating some of its favourite brands including Ben and Jerry's, Magnum and Mr Whippy. Note the personalised number plate VII TBV and the finely detailed Mercedes badge in the radiator grille. Another authentic detail features on the back where

Nakajima Ki-84		NEW
AC042	SCALE 1:72	PRICE £13.95

Nakajima Ki-84

Oxford Aviation adds another Japanese aircraft to the collection with the 1:72 scale version of the WWII military plane piloted by Captain Tomojiro Ogawa of 1st Chutai, 103rd Sentai at Itami Airfield, Japan in 1945.

The aircraft was developed as a single-seater fighter plane manufactured by the Nakajima Aircraft Company. Its excellent performance and high manoeuvrability, together with its powerful armament, were more than a match for Allied fighters, despite poor production quality, a high-maintenance engine and a landing gear prone to buckling. The Ki-84, nicknamed 'Hayate' meaning 'gale' took its first flight in March 1943. Just over 3,500 were built between its launch and subsequent retirement in 1945, although overseas military operators continued to use the Ki-84 even after the Korean War.

Our model has a dark green upper surface and a silver underside. You will notice some 'bare' patches of metal showing through which authentically replicate the state of many aircraft in real life. The colours were applied to an unprimed airframe and this often weathered badly with large patches of natural metal being visible. The white band towards the rear of the fuselage was applied to those aircraft operating in overseas territories to help anti-aircraft defence operators to distinguish them from enemy aircraft. In addition, yellow - or sometimes orange - identification strips were applied to the leading edge of the wings, also included on our replica aircraft. Added details include a black anti glare shield in front of the pilot's windscreen, rust coloured exhaust pipes, yellow propeller tips, black gun barrels and silver Pitot tube. The red Japanese air force roundels appear on both the upper and lower wings and a red/white 'lightning stripe' runs along the side of the fuselage on both sides from the tail to the rear of the wing.

40mm Bofors Gun - Olive Drab

Team up this second colour scheme on the newly tooled Bofors Gun with the recently released dark brown version.

The Bofors 40mm gun is an anti-aircraft/multi purpose auto cannon designed and manufactured in the 1930s by the Swedish arms manufacturer A B Bofors. It was introduced in 1934 and is still being used today, making it the longest serving artillery piece of all times. During its long life, it has been used by worldwide armies in a long list of conflicts, notably WWII during which time it was used by most of the western Allies as well as by the Axis powers. It also saw service in the Falklands War of 1982.

Bedford OY Dropside - BRS

Bedford was a subsidiary of Vauxhall Motors, in turn the British subsidiary of General Motors, established in 1930 constructing commercial vehicles. Our latest release on the Bedford OY is as used by British Road Services - the Wisbech Group. With its familiar lion and wheel logo, BRS was a familiar sight on the UK roads and as part of the railway station scene well into the 1950s. The BRS dropside truck with its flatbed planked out rear section is a six-wheeler comprising a double back wheel configuration. Registered JV8825, the model is decorated in red with black trim and olive green interior. The most colourful element of it is the well detailed BRS logo which features on both the side doors.
