CHANGE OF ADDRESS/POSTAL CHARGES

We have been struggling for some time to handle all the orders we are receiving, not just from the club - but retailers and distributors worldwide. Today Oxford has an extensive distribution network, from the US to Australia, and from Scandinavia to South America. The world has also changed, we used to promised delivery within 28 days, many of you today email, or telephone after a few days wondering where your order is. So from this Globe onwards our club/internet orders will be handled from a special unit that in Southampton - the address and telephone are on the front cover/order form. From here we will be able to answer calls 7 days a week and despatch within a few days of receiving orders. The Swansea operation will still continue as our Head Office, we also opened up an international distribution unit in Swansea last year. Geraldine and Sue will remain at the Swansea office, but club orders should be sent to the new address. We also have to accomodate the increases in postage charges and also the increased size of some of our models. So postage will be charged at £1 before discount for every £10 ordered, (£2 for European orders and £3 for orders outside of Europe). I have decided to leave the multi- purchasing as it is at this time.

Lyons started to make ice-cream in 1894 using the turbine bowl method. When refrigeration was further developed after the First World War production increased and automation helped to bring the product to a wider market. Unlike America, ice-cream in Britain was a seasonal phenomena with fluctuating sales depending on the weather pattern. With use of frozen carbon dioxide Lyons were able to ship their ice-cream from the Cadby Hall factory, by train, to most parts of the UK setting up cold stores at several rail-heads.

Lucey Transport Volvo FH Box Trailer NEW
VOL01BX	SCALE 1:76	EDITION -----	PRICE £20.45

VOL01BX Volvo FH Box Trailer – Lucey Transport Logistics

This exciting new Oxford introduction comprises the first model with a box trailer that we have ever produced. To celebrate its addition to the Oxford Modern Trucks series, we've chosen a superb Irish livery in the red, white and green Lucey Transport Logistics colour scheme.

Lucey Transport Logistics (LTL) was established in 1945, since when it has become a leading provider of transport services, working out of one centre in Rathcoole, Co. Dublin and two in Co. Cork. The company employs over a hundred people, a quality fleet of articulated and rigid vehicles, 300 trailers and over 500,000 sq ft of modern high-bay warehousing. The LTL fleet consists of temperature-controlled units, Curtainsiders/Euroliners, Flats, Keg trailers, 20/40 ft skeletal trailers and tankers.

The company specialises in transport and warehousing solutions to the manufacturing, wholesale, beverage, confectionery, food and packaging industries. Their client base includes the Irish arm of many blue chip companies, including Cadbury, Philips Electronics, Dulux and Heineken. In addition, Lucey Transport has a strong environmental ethic, complying with all applicable legislation, including the re-use and recycling of materials wherever possible, minimising waste and the promotion of energy efficiencies.

For collectors of Irish liveried vehicles and modern trucks in general, this new addition will add a colourful and authentic dimension to your fleet.

W H Malcom Volvo NEW
VOL02CS	SCALE 1:76	EDITION -----	PRICE £20.45

Donald Malcom was just 14 when he inherited the family business in the 1940s. Its assets were a single truck and a horse and cart. By 1960, when the firm was acquired by Grampian Holdings, Donald had built it up to a fleet of 37 vehicles - plus seven items of plant. In January 2002, Grampian Holdings plc was renamed The Malcom Group plc and was fully listed on the UK Stock Exchange, before being taken private again by the Malcom family in 2005.

East Kent Road Car Company Limited was officially formed on 11 August 1916. From 1928, the Southern Railway became a significant shareholder in the company. From 1929, an arrangement was made with the British Post Office where letter boxes would be installed on some vehicles. Moving into the 1930s saw the take overs of the tramways of Dover and Thanet, trams were quickly replaced with motor buses.

During the Second World War, East Kent vehicles were regular targets for enemy aircraft and the long range guns across The Channel on the French coast before the fall of France. To try to combat this, the cream-coloured parts of the buses were repainted grey to help make them less visible. The company experienced many losses during this time, especially at Dover where the garage suffered a direct hit in 1942, killing several staff.

In the late 1950s, East Kent launched its first open top bus service with some of its wartime Guys converted. Painted in the reverse cream and red livery, they operated out of Thanet garage. This little Anglia van was used in the late 1960's advertising its services.

In real life, the Bedford J1 was built in large numbers and saw service with many authorities from the early 1950s to well into the 1970s. The bodywork was named after its designer Herbert Lomas and the vehicles proved very efficient. They were seen everywhere, particularly in the 1950s-1960s.

Wall's (Ice Cream) Ltd for many years and then as an independent Unilever subsidiary, made and marketed Wall's ice cream in the UK. Originally an independent British meat producer, Thomas Wall and Son Ltd reputedly considered manufacturing ice cream in 1913 to fill in the seasonal downturn in sales of meat pies and sausages. Ice cream production commenced in 1922 and as ice cream production grew in significance Unilever split the company into two, T Wall and Son (Ice Cream) Ltd and T Wall and Son (Meats) Ltd, selling off the meat company in 1944. This Walls ice cream livery is a nice addition to our range of trailers and sits well on railway layouts covering many eras.

Rover chief engineer Maurice Wilks was inspired by his army-surplus Willys-Overland Jeep to create a workhorse vehicle for military and agricultural use - and for export abroad to kick-start both Rover's fortunes and the national economy after World War II. Prototypes were up and running by late 1947, and production of the Series I began at Solihull in summer 1948. It had permanent four-wheel-drive with low-ratio gearing and a locking freewheel mechanism, and a 50bhp, 1.6-litre engine from the Rover P3 saloon. It was fitted with lightweight body panels made from surplus aircraft-grade aluminium - steel was in short supply post-war - and came with army-surplus green paint. The Land Rover price started from just £450. Supply to the British forces started in 1949, the Land Rover replacing the Austin Champ and later, the rust-prone Austin Gipsy, deliveries to organisations such as the Red Cross soon followed. The 100,000th Land Rover was made in autumn 1954 and by 1958, production ran to around 200,000.

Land Rover Fire Engines were built on 80-inch and 88-inch chassis. These small and easily manoeuvrable fire tenders were capable of operating in restricted spaces that larger appliances could not reach. Many were sold to works fire services or small airfields where they filled the role of first-response vehicles.

Although Land Rover sub-contracted the construction of later Fire Engines to specialist manufacturers through their Special Projects Department, the Series I models were actually built at the Rover factory.

The PA Cresta is probably the most well-known version. It mimicked the American fashion for giant tailfins, wrap-around windows and whitewall tyres but in an understated way compared to the Cadillacs and Buicks of the time. It bears a strong resemblance to a 1955 Packard Caribbean. All factory-built PAs were 4-Door Saloons.

The model went through five variants labelled PA to PE, each having a standard and "de luxe" option. The car was designed by Gerald Palmer during World War II and was intended to be a major leap forward following the relatively staid designs of pre-war Jowetts.

Unlike the Zephyr 4, the Zephyr 6 had a full width grille including the headlight surrounds:

The family firm of C S Ellis has been in business since 1933. Based in Luffenham in Rutland, the company also has several sites across the Midlands, all adjacent to key motorways, from which it runs a large modern fleet. The vehicles range from vans right through to 44 tonne articulated curtainside trailers and the company transports loads of various commodities throughout the UK and Europe. This modern truck in its authentic and distinctive green, red and yellow livery would enhance any contemporary railway layout.

This book tells the stories of a number of iconic characters. In 1910 Sir George White set up a bus building firm in Bristol and the Bristol Aeroplane Co. Archie Frazer-Nash made sports cars under his own name, having earlier set up GN with H R Godfrey, who later founded HRG. The Aldingtons, who took over Frazer Nash as AFN Ltd, imported BMW cars in the 1930s, and secured BMW designs for the Bristol Aeroplane Co in 1945 as the basis for a new car. After a short-lived partnership with Bristol, AFN Ltd returned to making Frazer Nash sports cars.

The books cannot be used in the multi- purchasing offers.
