

Do you have elevated blood pressure?

VasQFlow - a personal story

Warren Matthews, the founder of Xtend-Life, has a very personal interest in cardiovascular issues - three years ago (at the age of 71), he had open-heart surgery to replace a calcified aortic valve.

As he shares in this month's newsletter, it's not an experience he would recommend to anyone. But what he would recommend is learning how it could be avoided - calcification is still low on the radar for many health practitioners, but that doesn't make it any less dangerous.

The good news is that CX8 showed positive results for Warren and for hundreds of Xtend-Life customers. His arteries are in great shape now based on tests for elasticity.

But good health can be a moving target, and the experience with surgery led to elevated blood pressure. CX8 helped, but Warren wanted his research team to focus on something that would address the problem more directly.

They hit on raising levels of nitric oxide, a molecule that helps dilate the blood vessels which in turn makes it easier for the blood to flow. The challenge was twofold:

- find a natural ingredient to deliver fast results in the short term
- combine this with ingredients to stimulate the endothelium (a thin membrane that lines the inside of our heart and blood vessels) to produce nitric oxide in the long term

Not to ruin a good story, but the team succeeded; take a look at the video below, which takes you behind the scenes to discover the unfiltered story behind VasQFlow.

And as you're reading it, keep this in mind.

When you buy products from Xtend-Life, you have a level of reassurance that few other companies can match. That's because you're buying products that were created not with the goal of making money, but with the goal of solving a personal problem the founder had. This means there are no compromises; you're benefiting from the same product the founder himself is using.

It's a difference we think makes Xtend-Life the better way to health.

In good health,

Xtend-Life
