Top 6 Essential Oils

Lavender

The essential oil of lavender is the essence of pure calmness and relaxation. This is versatile oil giving off a light scent, which uplifts the spirit while transitioning moods to the ultimate state of calmness. Let your stress, pain, and anxiety float away with this therapeutic remedy.

Sweet Orange

The sweetest of all essential oils, this tangy, citrus delight is a breath of fresh air. The rich component d-limonene aids in maintaining normal cellular regeneration and gives off a natural, calming effect. A sweet cocktail for the senses, this aroma promotes positive attitudes and induces relaxation for a calm spirit.

Lemongrass

Just as it sounds, lemongrass essential oil has a light and fresh lemony scent with earthy undertones. A great herb for inducing relaxation and balance for the mind. Externally, it helps relieve muscle pain and aches, as well as kill harmful bacteria. As it acts as a natural antiseptic and provides many great vitamins for the skin, it can relieve aches and boost energy.

Tea Tree

Tea tree essential oil has a distinct scent, like a clove spice fused with a pine aroma. Its powerful antiseptic properties wipe out harmful bacteria to heal wounds quickly and prevent future infection. When applied to the body, it creates a cooling sensation that wakes up dull, dehydrated skin and leaves you feeling completely refreshed. And you can extend its refreshing qualities in the rest of your home, as it naturally disinfects the air while creating an invigorating at-home scent.

Eucalyptus

The coastal trees of Australia provide a wonderful therapeutic essential oil—the powerful eucalyptus essential eucalyptus plant. Known for its awesome ability to improve respiratory issues (such as that pesky common cold), it can clear out that cough and heavy congestion we all have suffered from. It is a great natural anti-inflammatory, which remedies any irritation of the skin and naturally hydrates damaged tissues.

Peppermint

The one and only peppermint essential oil has an exquisite minty and refreshing aroma—the one we know as pungent menthol. It is great for many health restorative properties. It is used as a medicinal and calming aroma to treat a wide variety of bodily organs. It can be helpful in calming gastrointestinal issues, reducing muscle pain, and relieving anxiety. A kick of peppermint in an aromatherapy session or diffuser will liven up the mind, body, and soul.
