Lavender
The essential oil of lavender is the essence of pure calmness and relaxation. This is an odore uplifting oil with a light scent, which uplifts the spirits while transitioning moods to the ultimate state of calmness. Let your stress, pain, and anxiety float away with this therapeutic remedy.

Sweet Orange
The sweetest of all essential oils, this tangy citrus delight is a breath of fresh air. The rich component d-limonene aids in maintaining normal cellular regeneration and plays an essential calming effect. A sweet cocktail for the senses, this aroma promotes positive attitudes and induces relaxation for a calm soul.

Lemongrass
Just as it sounds, lemongrass essential oil has a light and fresh lemony scent with earthy undertones. A great herb for inducing relaxation and balance for the mind. Externally, it helps relieve muscle pain and aches, as well as killing harmful bacteria. As a vital oil, it acts as a natural antiseptic and provides many great vitamins for the skin. It can relieve aches and boost energy.

Tea Tree
Tea tree essential oil has a distinctive scent, like a clove spice fused with a pine aroma. Its powerful antibiotic properties wipe out harmful bacteria to heal wounds quickly and prevent future infections. When applied to the body, it creates a cooling sensation that warms up cold, dehydrated skin and leaves you feeling completely refreshed. And you can extend its refreshing qualities in the rest of your home, as it naturally disinfects the air while creating an invigorating at-home scent.

Eucalyptus
The coastal trees of Australia provide a wondrous therapeutic essential oil—the powerful eucalyptus oil. The eucalyptus plant, known for its awesome ability to improve respiratory issues such as that pesky common cold, it can clear out that cough and heavy congestion we all have suffered from. It is a great natural anti-inflammatory, which remedies any irritation of the skin and naturally hydrates damaged tissues.

Peppermint
The one and only peppermint essential oil has an invigorating and refreshing aroma—the one we know as purementhols. It’s great for many health and stress-related properties. It’s used as a medicinal and calming aroma to treat a wide variety of bodily organs. It can be helpful in calming gastrointestinal issues, reducing muscle pain, and relaxing anxiety. A drop of peppermint in an aromatherapy session or diffuser will lift up the mind, body, and soul.
