A MOTHER'S WORK

GROUNDING A frequent business traveller, Sharon Wong is finally back home for a significant stretch of time. She was even able to say, “Any time works for me” when asked about this shoot — music to any magazine editor’s ears. HOT SEAT But with 12 Motherswork retail outlets across China and two in Singapore, work is never far from her mind, or as is the case today, the boot of her car. From it, she pulled out the iconic Stokke Tripp Trapp chair, which as we learnt, can be adjusted for use whether you’re nine months old or 99. SOUND BITE “Everyone asks me about the business and my children. But no one ever asks about my husband,” Wong mused during the interview. Well, the “gentleman from Sydney” (as the kids describe him; she’s “the gangster from Ipoh”) is Ken, and the pair have been married for 26 years. COOKIES This woman can bake! She brought us cookies, a jar each of cranberry and salted chocolate chip, and they were absolutely scrumptious. Just ask our art director, who couldn’t stop snacking on it. And no, we do not embellish.
