OUR STORY

Raised in the heart of bourbon country, we grew to value what is storied, tested, and endures the test of time. Like fine bourbon, we were aged amongst Kentucky's long standing culture of grit, gumption, and refined taste. The traditions of our upbringing taught us the value of hard work, an honest life, and the fulfillment earned by creating something with your own two hands.

After meeting in college, we began our creative journey with the simple idea that, like grandpa's luggage and dad's time-tested belt, all leather goods should be built to last a lifetime. Nearly everything that we found from our go-to department stores and online retailers did not live up to the standards we were raised to uphold. To ensure the quality once found in the years gone by, we knew we had to make these goods on our own in the very same way they were made by our grandfather's generation.

We are honored that you have discovered Clayton & Crume. Our hope is to convey our dedication to Kentucky craftsmanship through the quality of our American made goods and their excellent heirloom nature, allowing these pieces to become a part of your everyday story. It is our passion to reduce the need for mass production by creating something you can be proud to use, ensuring that our Clayton & Crume trademark will carry on for generations to come.

We have an ever-growing team in our Louisville, KY workshop that takes pride in producing the majority of goods that you see on our website. We also collaborate with partner workshops, both domestic and abroad, in order to bring new and exciting goods to the C&C lineup. It is our mission to create goods that, like a barrel of good Kentucky bourbon, only get better with time.
