With Dinosaur Hill a few doors down and Pink Olive a block away, 9th Street is one of the few streets in New York that caters to children. An.Me is a quirky and stylish boutique for newborns up through kids size 12. The store also carries unique toys and accessories for small shoppers and their families. Their fun, creative clothes include shirts that feature both the cartoon front and back of animals, articles with big patchwork pockets, and tiny handkerchiefs made of organic materials. The clever toys that line the walls capture an identical sense of whimsy, and will delight kids and parents alike.
