FAQ:

How does the Domain work and the cards with in it?

When a Domain is created, 3 of the Territory Cards used to pay for the Princess are placed in the Domain along with the Princess.

Action cards from your hand can be stored on a Territory equal to or less than the cost of the Territory card instead of discarding them. These are referred to as "Action cards kept in your Domain."

When Succession cards are stored on a Domain, they are not attached to the Territory cards in the Domain but are placed near your Princess.

When Succession/Territory cards are place in a Domain, they count as both Territory and Succession cards and can store cards like the Territories used to create the Domain. For example, if Imperial Estate is placed in your Domain, you can store cards on it as well as benefit from its Succession Points.

Can Battering Ram target any card in a Domain?

As the correction states above, Battering Ram can only target action cards stored in an Opponent's Domain on one of their Territories.

When do I shuffle my deck?

If an effect forces you to draw or reveal a card and there are no cards in your deck, you shuffle your discard pile to create a new draw deck and resolve the effect.

How do revealed cards work?

If a card instructs you to reveal a card or put revealed cards into your deck, then those cards stay revealed until you either draw them or discard them.

How do I use Defense cards like Rampart?

If you are using a Defense card to defend against an attack, you simply reveal it, do its effect and then return it to your hand. If you use a Defense card from your Domain you remove it from your Domain, resolve its effect and then return it to your hand.

How is Lain and Shion's ability used?

By discarding a token on Lain and Shion, you can take a full turn after your current turn. Once you have completed that turn, play proceeds as normal. You may only discard one token per turn and you cannot use this effect on the additional turn.
