Kaia is timeless elegance and purity often wrought in geometric perfection and rigorous design.

All our materials are sourced in Europe (with the exception of electrical components and drivers).

Our metalwork is made in Germany and Austria, usually of brass materials which has either been hand plated or left in its natural patina.

Our marble is sourced and crafted in the North of Italy, our mouth blown glass objects come from traditional glass workshops in Bohemia.

The selected organic paper material, produced in Puglia, is a further development of the papier-mâché process and has a raw, stone-like structure.

Finally after a thorough internal quality control process, all parts are assembled in our workshop in Germany. Our commitment to support small traditional tradesmanship helps to ensure that these trades do not cease to exist.

Sustainability is at the core of our values. In an industry that is saturated in mass-production we strive to use natural and reusable materials, create made-to-order, timeless products and use techniques that champion artisanal tradition.

Our products stand the test of time and will continue to work with your interior scheme despite evolving trends.
