

Photo by Joseph De Leo, Food and Prop Styling by Liza Jernow

GIFT GUIDE

The 39 Best Food and Kitchen Gifts for Cooks, Dinner Party Enthusiasts, and Everybody Else Who Loves Food

A transcendent soy sauce, a sharp Japanese pocket knife, and skillet that are as beautiful as they are practical: These are our highly-curated recommendations for the best food and cooking gifts this year.

Finding the best food and kitchen gifts for the holidays is always a little bit tricky. This isn't a wedding registry, after all; you're likely not buying your friends their first chef's knife or sauté pan. So this year, we're recommending gifts that are beautiful, special additions to any kitchen (and ingredients so delicious you'll buy a second helping for yourself). And okay, there are some staples in here, because nobody is going to be mad about new table linens.

Photo by Joseph De Leo, Prop Styling by Liza Jernow

Aplat Canvas Food Cover

Saving leftovers so often feels like an eco-unfriendly task, what with all the tin foil and plastic wrap and easily-disposable plastic containers. These organic cotton food covers, fitted with an easy drawstring, solve that problem. They're easy to store, fit over a variety of pots and pans, and are machine washable. And it doesn't hurt that they're cute.

$28

SHOP NOW