PATTERN NOTES

From beach to brunch, Keyleth is a contemporary dress that will make your summer dreams come true. The simple yet tailored silhouette hugs your body perfectly. It features a riblike stitch pattern, worked sideways to create minimalist vertical lines. The best part – it has pockets! Crocheted in our 100% linen yarn, Flax, this piece will soften with every wear.

This dress is created in three separate panels then seamed together. Each piece is worked sideways so the stitch pattern appears as a vertical ribbing once completed.

The Back Panel incorporates shaping at the hips. This piece will start with one full length row, then immediately begins a series of decreasing short rows. When the Hip Shaping is finished, the full length of the piece is resumed until it is time to mirror the shaping on the other side.

The Front Panels are created with two separate pieces that are sewn down the center to create a visible seam. Pockets are created last, then sewn on.

ASSEMBLY

Sew Dress Together

Front Panel Assembly

Overlap the two front panels at the middle, with RS facing, and whip stitch them together to create a visible overlap at the seam.

Mark Armholes

With removable stitch markers, mark 6½ (7, 7½, 8, 8½, 9, 9½, 10, 10½)” from the top on the sides of each panel. This space will be left unworked for armhole openings.

Sew Front and Back of Dress Together.

Align the Front and Back panels with WS facing and sew along each side from the removable stitch markers down to the bottom of the dress. Remove the stitch markers.

Sew the top flat edges of the front panel to the back panel to create the shoulders.

Turn dress so that RS is facing.

Attach Pockets

Try on the dress and place the pockets so that the tops are in line with the start of the hip shaping. Space them evenly apart to your liking and pin them to place. Sew them to the front panels along the side, bottom, and opposite side, leaving the top of the pocket open.
