The annual Consumer Electronics Show (CES) in Las Vegas is the first global trade event of the year. Rather like the location where it is based, there is a huge amount of glitz and vapor around the show.

Now that the Nevadan dust has settled, here are five products and services that may prove to be more than just hype and may be the products of choice during 2018.

Nomadic Audio

Tangled headphones and small, portable, low-quality speakers are an instant irritation. Nomadic Audio Speakase is a fully packed speaker with tone depth to successfully turn up any party.

It transforms the average carry-on suitcase into a fashionable, full-scale Hi-Fi quality speaker. Speakase packs the power of large-scale quality speakers into a water-resistant, lightweight, shock-absorbent suitcase, turning any terminal and hotel room into a VIP event.

The company says it is the first suitcase that combines a stand-alone speaker and functional carry-on luggage, packing rich quality sound and luxury travel, together. It went down extremely well at CES and certainly didn't go quietly.
