Keeping Britain Beautiful

For, by and with the environment

"NaturePac has helped us to navigate very clearly, the path we need to take." Simon Fraser, Hot Numbers Coffee

The literal and increasing hunger for street-food is matched only by the growing awareness of how we're managing the waste it generates, specifically... complex plastics.

Our current efforts are fuelled by the need to do things differently. Conscious consumers are now enlightened and while we're leading the charge here at NaturePac, we have a lot of work to do... together, if we're ever going to match the impressive demand.

Sustainable Living

What are consumers looking for?

We'll always keep pushing for thoughtful consumption of food-to-go packaging here at NaturePac, until every cup and box is designed for, by... and with the surrounding environment.

One of the most urgent problems in modern street-food culture is the amount of packaging/waste that's not being managed appropriately. We hope to collaborate with influential foodies both in-and-out of town. We aim to interrogate existing waste management processes and challenge the way things are happening.

We'd love to work closely with you to find the best possible options for your customers. We can investigate the possibilities together and learn what's available Vs what's required case-by-case.

We're also aiming to present as many Home Compostable products as possible by the end of 2020. We hope to empower consumers with knowledge and choice... and we'd like to start right away.
