

Expectations

Expectations are important. Writing them down and articulating them forces you to keep yourself accountable. Revisit the expectations periodically to ensure that they are being met and to add to them if needed.

Expectations for yourself:

1. Learn something from my student.
2. Identify something deficient in my own practice.
- 3.
- 4.

Expectations you have for your student:

1. Be actively involved in decision-making on scene.
2. Show up on time ready to learn.
3. Listen to instruction and incorporate criticism into practice.
- 4.
- 5.
- 6.

What your student can expect from you:

1. Delegate responsibility for patient care to the student.
2. Provide constructive criticism.
3. Give positive and negative feedback.
- 4.
- 5.

What are the expectations your student has of you and the field instruction?

1. Be committed to the student's success.
- 2.
- 3.
- 4.
- 5.
