MAKEMERRY is the first line of intimates that is meticulously designed to look amazing, feel luxurious, and provide pain-free support after surgery, during radiation and beyond.

Greetings! My name is Dr. Katie Deming. I'm a board certified radiation oncologist and founder of MAKEMERRY. For years, I watched as my patients struggled to find bras that felt soft against their sensitive skin. Not finding them, I would alter their own bras to make them more comfortable during radiation. Unfortunately, these little hacks were ineffective and anything but sexy. So I decided to take the plunge—pun intended—and design the perfect bra for my patients. My passion project turned into six years of researching the best fabrics and designs, prototyping, patenting, wear testing, not sleeping, and ultimately, developing MAKEMERRY's unique design.

MAKEMERRY is the first line of soft, stylish intimates meticulously designed to provide pain-free support during radiation. Although, our bras are not just great during radiation. They are perfect for any woman searching for a bra that won't irritate her incision or port site, soothe tender ribs or just feel great against her sensitive body. I never intended to design clothing, but MAKEMERRY has become an extension of my own oncology practice and a gratifying way to impact not only my patients, but also women worldwide. I am excited to help you serve your customers looking for that little bit of extra comfort.

Sincerely,

Be well,

Katie
