

Best Books For Book Lovers Little (1-3)

I'm Not Reading by Jonathan Allan

A cute book about how stories are better when they are shared!

The Monster At The End of This Book by John Stone

A classic in preschool metafiction (no, seriously). Don't worry the monster is not scary!

Moo, Baa, La La La! by Sandra Boynton

Simple words and repeating patterns mean that this is a book that your little one might soon be able to read to you!

Eating the Alphabet by Lois Ehlert

A lovely alphabet book that encourages children not to just memorize the alphabet, but enjoy the words each letter stands for! Might even encourage picky eaters to branch out!

The Red Book by Barbara Lehman

A book that your toddler can experience all on their own. This creative story has no words! It tells the story of a girl who finds a magic book.

The Incredible Book Eating Boy by Oliver Jeffers

A little boy gets smarter each time he eats a book, but when he gets an upset stomach he has to find a more conventional way to experience stories!

It's never too late to start a new tradition

HoldTheMagic.com

Best Books For Book Lovers Bigger (4-7)

How Rocket Learned to Read by Tad Hills

If the adorable dog, Rocket, can learn to read so can any child who picks up this charming book!

The Bee Tree by Patrica Polacco

Sometimes the work of reading a book is worth the reward!

Patrick Picklebottom and the Penny Book by Mr. Jay

A book for young readers who sometimes have trouble looking away from their screens.

The Book Without a Story by Carolina Rabei

The enchanting story of an unread library book looking for his perfect reader!

Free Fall by David Weisner

Another (slightly more advanced) book without words. A boy goes to sleep with a book in his arms and dreams of his adventures in its pages!

How This Book Was Made by Mac Barnett

A deeply silly and endearing meta fiction romp through the world of publishing. Far more fun and child friendly than the premise sounds!

It's never too late to start a new tradition

HoldTheMagic.com

Best Books For Book Lovers Biggest (8-12)

Dealing With Dragons Patricia C. Wrede

The first in a lovely fantasy series. Princess Cimorene decides that she would rather be the librarian to a dragon than be forced to marry a prince. This spirited adventure encourages reading, research and creative problem solving.

Inkheart by Cornelia Funke

Another first in a series. This book focuses on the displaced residence of a magic novel that can turn its characters real, and suck unwary readers inside. This is a thrilling, fast paced fantasy that will captivate your child's attention!

No More Dead Dogs by Gordon Korman

A book for the more reluctant reader or any kid who thinks what happens to animals in books is largely horrible and unfair. This is a very funny, heartwarming novel that never talks down to its readers.

Series Of Unfortunate Events by Lemony Snicket

A classic of parodied classical literature. This series may seem all doom and gloom but hiding beneath the surface is a smart, funny parody of famous books. Perfect for introducing large words and literary concepts to a budding reader.

Captain Underpants by Dav Pilkey

Underneath all the silliness this is a book about telling stories and making art. The two kid narrators and 'authors' have a zest for reading and writing that is infectious!

Matilda by Roald Dahl

The original book about loving books. Matilda is an icon for every child struggling to find their voice. The book is an unabashed love letter to the joys and advantages of being a voracious reader.

It's never too late to start a new tradition

HoldTheMagic.com