Handcrafted for Canadians, by Canadians

It means more to us than where we work. It's also how we work. Canadians put care into what they make and this takes craftsmanship. Three generations in the textile industry have taught us that there is absolutely no substitute for a team of dedicated artisans using quality materials to hand-craft garments that are beautiful, comfortable and built to last. We're not just creating clothes. We're creating a movement.

From stocking our fabrics to shipping your order, our entire sustainable manufacturing process is under one roof. With expertise in the execution and fulfillment of retail and promotional programs, we continuously replenish our domestic inventory and offer an endless array of decoration, design and customization possibilities. In addition to prioritizing the triple bottom line -- people first, planet second and profit third -- our mandate is to sustain the Canadian textile industry by setting the global standard for quality, transparency and supplier diversity. Remember, no matter where a product is made, it's touched by human hands. Touch a Redwood Classics product and ask yourself, Who are you wearing? The answer is in our story. Thank you for helping us to preserve the art of a responsibly made, well-constructed garment.

LETS MAKE SOMETHING BEAUTIFUL

Meet the Makers

Before finding a home in your closet, each Redwood Classics piece is touched by multiple craftspeople in our vertically integrated Toronto factory. It is for this reason that, from knit to ship, each Redwood Classics piece is proudly Canadian.

The Mask Collection

Face masks are part of our new daily routines, so why not look good while you do good? When you purchase a Redwood Classics mask, you are supporting the production of two masks: one for you and one that we will donate to healthcare networks, Indigenous communities, essential service providers and other charitable organizations to keep communities safe.

Made For Good Challenge

It’s a privilege to give back to the city and country that has given our family business so much. In a world where we celebrate technology, and how quickly that technology can be adapted, our silver lining is the ability to transform our factory into a mask-production house. Since the middle of March, we have produced and donated thousands of masks to local healthcare facilities and organizations.

Health Canada and the CDC has suggested that we cover our mouths and noses with a cloth face cover when around others. It goes on to specify that everyone should wear a cloth face cover when they have to go out in public to protect others. Wearing a cotton mask helps save medical-grade face masks for frontline healthcare workers.

Today, we can offer the public high-quality, locally made masks and mask kits at an affordable price. Our ready-to-wear Mask Packs and ready-to-assemble DIY Mask Kits enable others to give or make masks for their loved ones, their friends and vulnerable citizens.

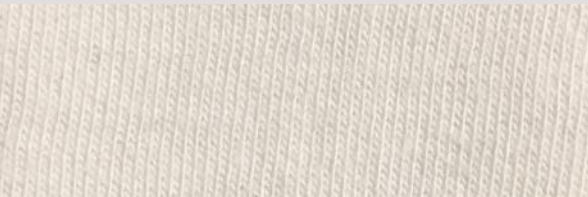

There is no better time than now to be proudly Canadian. Our country needs us, and we need our country.

TOGETHER, WE WILL GET THROUGH THIS
