Alligator Alarm

Alligator Al lived in a swamp in Florida. Alligator Al was a very big alligator, and he was always hungry. All the animals in the swamp were afraid of him. When Alligator Al was awake, none of the animals could walk through the swamp or swim in the river. The animals kept asking, "What should we do?"

The animals discovered that Alligator Al took a nap every afternoon. They asked the ants in the anthill nearby to keep watch and sound an alarm when he woke up. The plan worked! Finally, the animals had a time when they could swim and walk through the swamp.

The ants kept watch on Alligator Al, and when he stopped snoring and awoke, they sounded the alarm!
