2022/23 Edition.

Dear Wiggly Customer,

Welcome to the latest Wiggly Catalogue. We hope you will find inspiration inside these pages to support you to recycle your organic waste, to provide food and support your wildlife and to make your own fabulous compost.

By supporting us you are also helping our whole farm to be sustainable, and you are part of our journey into regenerative agriculture based on five main principals:

- Don't disturb the soil. ...
- Keep the soil surface covered. ...
- Keep living roots in the soil. ...
- Grow a diverse range of crops. ...
- Bring grazing animals back to the land.

By focussing on our soil and giving up ploughing we will be helping our own worms and reducing the need for fertiliser and chemicals. This way we are committed to becoming a carbon neutral farm, and thanks to you have planted over 500 metres of hedging in the past year, made a good size wildlife pond, and planted over 200 trees. This coming year we are aiming to improve our Piggy Bank... see detail over the page...

One thing is for sure changing a 600 acre farm is a very difficult challenge – especially when you consider the financial pressures... MUCH easier to take action in your garden. We're here to help you do just that. Whether you want to ferment or compost your kitchen waste, make compost from your lawn clippings, or support your garden birds we have the solution, and the knowledge and experience to help.

Not sure where to start? How about these easy steps:

- Recycle all your kitchen waste using Bokashi Bran (check out the new Essentials pack on page 8)
- Gift a composter! – It's unusual, it's useful and it's fun (What about our Urbalive Wormeries on page 22)
- Compost your garden waste – it's easy (we love the Green Johanna – page 18)
- Feed the birds – using locally produced food saves food miles just as well as eating swede you know (Try our British Amaize Balls on page 50)
- Join our GREEN POINTS SCHEME – sign up it's free and it saves you lots of pennies (More details here on page 14)

Whether you have a balcony or acres and acres of land, composting and gardening for wildlife is one area that we can all make a difference with and even better all benefit directly from.

Enjoy your waste (!)
All the very best

JAN 2023

THANKS FOR ALL OF YOUR SUPPORT!
#WIGGLYPIGGYBANK

The aim will be to turn bring a 15 acre steep bank on the farm into Woodland Pasture – much better for carbon sequestration, for wildlife and grazing for our cattle. The Hopping and Stocking (no idea why The Bank was called this) was an arable field 20 years ago and since then it was allowed to rewild. Initially this was successful, but over the past few years brambles have overtaken the area to the detriment of it's diverse habitat. The PIGGY BANK will enable the farm to turn it into permanent pasture with three woodland areas within the field which will also give soil protection from water and wind erosion.

More info here

[www.wigglywiggles.co.uk
/pages/the-wiggly-piggy-bank](http://www.wigglywiggles.co.uk/pages/the-wiggly-piggy-bank)

Instead of major mechanical clearance the primary cultivation and clearance of the brambles will be achieved by a small drift of perfectly porky piggies (!) who will moot and root the bank ready for seed. The PIGGY BANK. They will be looked after by Phil and Monty on the farm

Our aim at Wigglys will be to support the hedging, trees, fencing and regeneration of the 15 acres. Our aim will be to raise £12,000 to support this over the next two years.

Bokashi Organko Essential Compost Bins New!

Benefits of Bokashi Composting;

- Easy to do.
- Doesn't require worms.
- Doesn't attract creepy crawlers or pests.
- Odourless.
- Nearly all food waste can be composted.
- Low Maintenance

What's particularly good about the system is once it's set up it's very cheap to run, and yet you will get free nutrient rich fertiliser for life! When you add the fermented finished product to your garden you will add lots of nutrients to your soil and it helps retain moisture so less watering is needed.

Reduce Your Environmental Footprint

- Minimise carbon dioxide emissions used for transportation of food waste.
- You will reduce the amount of waste sent to landfill.

- Reduce your carbon footprint... Bokashi fermentation doesn't involve oxygen in the waste breakdown process, therefore it reduces greenhouse gas production

Improve Your Soil

- Composting using Bokashi recycles essential nutrients back into the earth improving soil quality.
- When you use Bokashi it helps your plants develop a natural immune system.
- It helps to improve water retention in sandy soils.
- Bokashi compost improves organic matter and nutrients increasing plant growth and better yields.

There's no negatives I can think of with Bokashi (except it doesn't make a lovely dark brown crumbly end product (you will need worms for that))

Air-tight bokashi bin for organic waste fermentation- Since fermentation is an anaerobic process, you need a composting bin with an air-tight lid that prevents food from rotting.

Made from post-consumer recycled plastics- Post-consumer recycled plastic is made of discarded products collected in dedicated containers for packaging or plastic.

Easy and quick cleaning - dishwasher safe- Due to its firm recycled material, you can easily put Bokashi Organko Essential in the dishwasher and leave the machine to do its job.

GREAT GIFT IDEA!

New! Barley Straw for Ponds

Barley Straw is the Natural way to clear algae from a pond, with no risk to plants or wildlife. It's perfect for getting rid of algae without using harmful chemicals. It doesn't take much barley straw to make a huge difference in your pond.

Biodegradable product - PLASTIC FREE, Loosely packed for best results + Homegrown barley straw from our farm!

The bags of barley simply float on the top of your pond. If you have a pump, you may want to tie a weight to it so it doesn't move around too much.

As the barley straw begins to decompose, it releases chemicals which stop algae from growing. It does not kill the existing algae, or any other plants. In fact, in some cases, aquatic plant growth has increased after barley straw applications because algae are no longer present to compete with the aquatic plants.

How much Straw?

We recommend about 10 to 25 grams of straw per square meter of pond area.

When should I apply the straw to my pond?

You can add barley straw to your pond all year round, but the most important factor is the temperature, in the summer months when the temperature of the water is above 20°C the process is faster compared to the winter months when the water temperature is below 10°C. Once the straw starts to decompose and release its natural chemicals, you should replace it in around 8 weeks.

Why adding Worms to your garden soil is a wigglingly good idea!

Worms are the fastest natural composters in the World and as long as you provide reasonable conditions for them they will add nutrients and aerate the soil as well as turn it for you.

The key to all this is to let them do the work – and they prefer not to be disturbed – whether that's by the plough, the rotovator or the spade.

We've known this for some-time... In 1881 Charles Darwin, the great biologist better-known for his theory of evolution wrote: "There are few animals that have played so important a part in the history of the world as these lowly organised creatures."

If you are thinking of adding worms to your garden or raised beds you need two types for maximum effect Night crawlers (also known as garden worms, lob worms or lumbricus terrestris) are key for your soil. They make large, vertical, permanent burrows that extend up to 2 metres deep, unless destroyed by tillage. The crawlers pull plant residues down like grass clipping and leaves into their burrows, where the residues soften and are eaten later.

Shallow-dwelling earthworms are often known as composting worms – red worms or dendra worms and whilst they are found in most soils they thrive in rich organic matter (such as leaf mould on a forest floor or manure. They mostly live in the top 30cm of your soil and make fantastic compost as long as you provide them with the organic matter to thrive on.

How to Introduce Worms into your Soil

This is a very simple process. Dig a few holes in your soil or raised beds and pop a couple of handfuls of Garden Worms and Composting worms into the holes. They will work their way into the soil from there.

You can't over populate your soil with worms so for a raised bed of around 2m x 1m I would add around 100 garden worms and 500g-1kg of composting worms to give them a good start.

1) Maintain a decent organic content in the soil - at least 2% - so adding compost and manure will help encourage your worms to breed.

2) Avoid tilling the soil as much as possible and use a no till method where you can.

3) Avoid pesticides and herbicides.

easy. Create the perfect conditions to encourage rapid composting!

The Compost Tumbler by Maze transforms leftover waste and garden refuse into a rich, nutrient-dense compost with next to no effort at all. The Tumbler's two compartments enable continuous composting...

When the first compartment is full, you start on the second. Once this side is full the first side is ready to empty, and the cycle continues.

The strong reinforced barrel has been UV protected and contains multiple air vents to promote aerobic decomposition. The large opening and sliding doors allow for the easy addition of waste and collection of ready compost.

A unique feature is the gear and handle, which ensures easier turning of the drum: the geared ratchet will automatically lock rotation in any position.

New! Green Johanna 330L Hot Composter

The Green Johanna is a top-performing hot composter that turns food waste - including cooked food, meat, fish and dairy - and garden waste into quality compost within months. Designed in Sweden and made in the UK from 100% recycled plastic, it has an expected lifespan of 10 years or more.

BEST FOR FOOD WASTE

The Johanna's patented airflow and ventilation systems create optimum conditions for a busy eco-system of composting micro-organisms to digest waste, releasing energy as they do - hence the term hot composter.

Depending on conditions, your fresh organic compost should be ready to use after 4-6 months.

One Johanna is designed to cope with the average food waste of a household of five and compostable waste from an average garden. A free aerator stick comes provided.

New! Green Cone Food Waste Digester

GARDEN WASTE

The Green Cone is a solar-powered food waste digester that efficiently disposes of all food waste - including cooked food, meat, fish (even bones) and dairy - with no turning or stirring required.

Made in the UK from 100% recycled plastic, the Green Cone has an expected lifespan of 10 years or more.

Dug into a hole in well-draining soil in a sunny position, the Cone reduces more than 90% of its contents to nutrient-rich water, which drains out of its underground basket and feeds surrounding soil.

Embedding the Cone in soil means that bacterial digestion occurs below ground level so any odours are absorbed by the soil.

Unlike the Green Johanna, the Green Cone does not accept garden waste or produce compost.

The Green Cone uses solar heating in its double-walled chamber to speed up the aerobic decomposition process in the underground digestion basket.

The basket should be placed in a hole about 70cm wide/54cm deep in free-draining soil (not clay or chalk) in a sunny spot in the garden.

A small amount of waste residue is produced which can be emptied every few years and dug into garden soil.

A well-positioned Cone can digest the food waste produced by the average household.

Composting Solutions with Worms & Bokashi

Recycling all your kitchen waste at home, without hassle!

If you like the idea of using your waste to make the very best compost & liquid feed, we think you'll love the urbalive.

Urbalive Worm Composter From Wiggly Wigglers

The Urbalive Worm Composter is a kit that can be used indoors or outdoors for composting kitchen waste with red worms. Perfect for households, classrooms or offices. Worms work best in sheltered conditions so if possible the best places to site the kit is the garden shed, garage or greenhouse, or in a sheltered location near the kitchen door.

Composting using the Urbalive Wormery is easy and odour-free. The kit comes with trays where the worms transform food scraps into vermicompost so that you can harvest the worm casts tray by tray, a sump where the liquid worm tea is collected and a secure lid.

The compost worms produce is really rich, often referred to as “Black Gold”. You can use as a rich base for potting compost or as a fertiliser when planting out and as a top dressing for your pots and planters. Worm tea is a liquid fertilizer containing a lot of rich nutrients and enzymes that help your plants grow and prevent pests. You will never have to buy liquid feed again.

Each Tray Holds up to 10L of Compost.

Dimensions: Total Height (Including Legs): 60.5cm, Height of Bin: 38cm, Width: 50.5cm, Depth 38cm.

Ten Tips for Great Worm Composting!

The following tips represent the result of a great deal of experience in worm-assisted composting. Please read them carefully and try to follow their advice. If you follow them properly you will have a contented stock of worms which, in due course, will produce for you a steady stream of rich dark compost!

bin and release ammonia before the worms can act on it, both conditions will harm your worms.

1) Don't try to rush things:

it will take several months for the worms to produce their first Tray full of compost. Initially, when adding waste, do not add large amounts at one time, little bits of food at frequent intervals is the best recipe. However, worms can eat half their own weight in food every day so, as the kit becomes established and the worms start breeding, add more waste each day. Do not pile up fresh waste to a depth greater than 50–100mm (2–4") at any one time. You can add waste as long as you can see worms working in the top layer of waste, just under the surface - within a few centimetres of the moisture mat.

2) At least 25% of what you add to the wormery needs to be dry material. Cardboard, egg boxes and shredded paper are great - these will help keep the wormery aerated.

3) If your worms get behind in their feeding and uneaten waste begins to build up in the bin, stop feeding for a few days. (Remember, though, worms do not have teeth and therefore the waste must start to go slightly mouldy before the worms can eat it.) Start feeding again when the worms are working in the top layer. Large quantities of uncomposted waste will start to putrefy. Putrefied waste will upset the worms and its smell will upset you, but not the rats and flies it will attract!

4) Try many different foods. Just like us, worms enjoy variation in their meals. If certain types of food prove unpopular and don't get eaten, try to avoid including them in future feedings. Once every few weeks add in a handful of Wiggly Wigglers Worm Treat (a special mixture of all the things that worms love best), it will give your composting a boost.

5) Grass clippings and leaves cannot be composted in your kit. Grass will heat up in the

6) Worms are not happy in conditions that are acidic (pH less than 6). If you have a pH meter check the contents regularly, pH7 is ideal, pH6 to 8 is acceptable. To prevent acidity avoid adding any very acidic wastes such as citric fruits or onions. Sprinkle a handful of Wiggly Wigglers Lime Mix onto the surface of the waste every couple of weeks, this will counteract the natural acidity of much kitchen waste.

7) Worms like dark moist conditions so keeping a moisture mat on top of the freshest waste will ensure that your worm compost doesn't start to dry out. Don't allow the contents to become waterlogged (see Tip 9) as this will lead to a lack of air in the bin. The contents of your Urbalive should be as moist as a freshly wrung sponge.

8) It will take a couple of months for the liquid feed to build up but then you should drain the sump frequently, depending on how much liquid you are getting, by opening the Tap. The liquid that you drain off makes an excellent houseplant and tomato feed. Dilute it with ten parts water before use.

9) If too much water gets into your kit and the contents become waterlogged you will need to drain off the excess liquid from the sump. Then try to dry out the contents by mixing in some shredded newspaper or cardboard (glossy magazine style paper is bad, toilet roll centres are good). As you mix in the paper try to 'fluff up' the contents to aerate the system. If your kit is producing a lot of liquid fertiliser, or rain water gets into the kit, it can be a good idea to leave the tap open with a container underneath. (Rainwater may occasionally get in as the lid is not airtight).

10) Avoid all oral contact with the bin's contents and remember to wash your hands afterwards.

Does your Wormery Need Restarting?

Have you got a long-unused wormery that you'd just love to get back up and running, or maybe a working worm composter that might need a little bit of tlc?

Our complete Rescue Kit is just what you need, it contains all starter materials including worms and bedding, instructions and all the bits you need to keep your wormery running happily for many months. Or maybe you just need some composting worms and a coir (bedding) block to give it a good jumpstart.

We believe there's no better time :)

Wormery Rescue Kit

If you are looking to restart and rescue your wormery, then this kit will give you a great start.

The included 500g worms will give your composter a healthy population to start with and the wormery bedding block ensures there is a neutral medium to start the worms off in before you start to add your kitchen waste.

The lime mix helps neutralise the acidity in kitchen waste and the worm treat does exactly what it says on the tin - a few handfuls now and again are a great treat for your wiggles :)

Rescue Kit contains:
500g Live Worms or Worm Voucher
A Wormery Bedding Block
2kg Lime Mix
2kg Worm Treat
Moisture Mat and Instructions

*Choose whether you would like receive 500g of Composting Worms or if you are giving the kit as a gift, you can choose to receive a voucher for live worms which you can redeem for free at a later date.

Meet Subpod - our latest Composting Discovery!

Three in one - compost system, worm farm and garden seat.

then return home to compost your waste.

Team up with compost worms and microbes to create rich soil and grow organic food.

Subpod is the compost system that's different. Completely pest free and odourless thanks to its careful design, composting has never been this easy. Worms and microbes live inside Subpod, travel out and spread rich nutrients into your garden

Taking care of your waste is as simple as opening a lid, stirring your scraps in and taking a seat. All the hard work is done by the worms below you. Subpod is attractive, but also subtle – easily hidden by bushy plants and thriving vegetables, so you can focus on keeping your garden gorgeous.

You don't have to compromise on beauty in your garden, compost with Subpod.

How it Works!

Subpod works like a little compost factory. Your compost worms, and the beneficial microbes that live alongside them, are the workers! They take food scraps and carbon items (like paper, leaves and coconut peat) and turn it all into rich compost that builds soil and helps plants to thrive.

Being underground, Subpod creates a natural environment for compost worms. Having access to the soil means they can feed and breed as rapidly as they like, because there's always room for their population to grow. Soil is an insulator, and in hot weather, compost worms will instinctively escape into soil to cool down. As the weather turns cold, it will keep your worms warm and active during winter (as long as the soil doesn't freeze). Every time your worms leave Subpod, their movement aerates your garden soil and increases its nutrient content.

Subpod is an aerobic system, which means it promotes odourless microbes to boost the composting process, not smelly anaerobic ones. The unique 360 ventilation below Subpods' lid keeps fresh air cycling through your system and, with weekly aeration, your compost will only ever smell like a forest floor.

Introducing Bokashi!

The easiest method of dealing with your kitchen waste.

Nothing “live” to worry about, you simply add your waste & a handful of bokashi, fill your first bin and wait two weeks to harvest.

(Fill your second bin whilst the first one is ‘cooking’ for 2 weeks)

Q: WHAT SORT OF COMPOST DO I GET OUT OF MY BOKASHI KIT?

A: Bokashi is more about “pickling” your waste than actually composting it. The Effective Micro-organisms in the bran activate as it gets damp and this ferments your waste. This means the end result once you have filled the bin and waited for about 2 weeks looks pretty much the same as when you put it in... However this fermented waste is very different to your original waste and will smell “pickly” and the key thing is once you put it into a trench in your garden or compost heap it will be exposed to the air and will break down very very quickly. At the same time this material is not attractive to vermin.

Q: WHAT SORT OF WASTE CAN BE USED IN THE BOKASHI KIT? I UNDERSTAND MAJORITY OF IT IS KITCHEN WASTE (MEAT, FISH, FRUIT, VEGETABLES), CAN PAPER BE USED SUCH AS JUNK POST MAIL, MAGAZINES AND SO FORTH?

A: You can ferment all kitchen waste but it would be pointless to add paper as the Bokashi doesn't compost the waste it ferments it – pickles it. Paper does not smell and so you would add this to a conventional composter without a problem. In our office we use a Bokashi Bucket for all our lunch scraps, fruit peelings etc and then we shred all our paper waste for packaging

Q: HOW DO YOU KNOW IF THE WASTE IS BROKEN DOWN BY THE MICROBES FROM THE BRAN?

A: The waste is not broken down – its fermented and you can tell very easily as the whole thing has a sweet pickly smell to it. The process is all very easy. As you fill the bucket you add a sprinkling of Bokashi. Once its full you start on another bucket leaving the original to ferment over the time it takes you to fill the next. In most people's experience that takes about two weeks.

Organko 2.0 Bokashi Kitchen Waste Composters

The Bokashi Organko 2 is the star of next generation products for the responsible management of the environment. It surprises with its superior form. It impresses with its usefulness. Instead of hiding it in the corners of your home, you will want to place it in the centre of attention on the kitchen counter.

Used with Bokashi bran, our Organko 2.0 Bokashi kits ferments and pickles your food waste in less than half the time of conventional composting methods without odours.

WHITE

The Organko 2 bokashi bucket has an inner container with holes at the base, this allows liquid to flow down and catches the solid waste. The inner container can be easily removed by pressing the two black notches on the sides of the outer layer. This is to prevent the solid waste from clogging up the tap - and also allows you to clean the bucket more easily.

Bokashi Organico Kitchen Composters

Used with Bokashi Active Bran, this system ferments and pickles your food waste in less than half the time of conventional composting methods without odours. An easy-to-use composting bin made for collecting food wastes all year long; Bokashi Organico set is suitable for households with their own composter or garden, who wish for the fermentation process to proceed to the final stage in the composter.

Bokashi Organico set is suitable for households with their own composter or garden, who wish for the fermentation process to proceed to the final stage in the composter. The double set comprises two bokashi buckets, which enable to dump the organic wastes in the second bucket after the first one is full and ready for the fermentation process for the next 14 days.

With the help of the effective organisms, present in the bran, the decomposition process is, therefore, longer and undisturbed. At the end of the fermentation process, the contents of the first bucket can be disposed onto the compost pile or buried into the ground, where they transform themselves into high-quality compost in only four weeks.

You can obtain as much as 3 new products with Bokashi: 100% natural fertilizer. The basis for first-class compost. Natural drain cleaning and maintenance agent.

Bokashi Active Bran

Our Bokashi Active Bran is the heart of our Bokashi Composting system. It is a dry mixture of bran and molasses that has been inoculated with beneficial micro-organisms... a carefully controlled mixture of microscopic bacteria, yeasts and fungi that work together to speed-up composting, suppress pathogens, prevent putrefaction and eliminate foul odours.

A 1kg pack of Bokashi Active Bran should last approximately 3 to 4 months.

Using Bokashi Compost in the Garden

After the Composter has been completely filled, the beneficial micro-organisms in the Bokashi take around two weeks to work their magic.

After a fortnight has passed you can add the contents of your Bokashi Composter to a conventional compost heap or bury it directly in the ground. Beware if burying however, Bokashi treated waste is a powerful compost—it may be too strong for some new planting. The best course of action is to dig the compost into a bed, mixing well with the existing soil, then leave it for two or three weeks before adding plants to the bed.

Burying Bokashi Compost in the ground is an excellent way of promoting soil health, indeed the whole principle of beneficial micro-organisms was conceived of by Professor Higa as a way of returning goodness to soils that had been overworked and treated with artificial fertilisers. Fresh Bokashi Compost has a low pH (ie it is acidic) but it will neutralise (pH close to 7) after 7–10 days when mixed with soil.

Using a Bokashi Composter is really easy!

It will soon become second nature, but for your first few composting cycles you can follow the step by step guide below:

- 1) Start composting by adding waste into the bottom of the bin. Make sure that it covers the base evenly. You always want to add waste in layers.
- 2) Sprinkle a layer of Bokashi Active Bran over the whole surface of the waste. PRESS DOWN TO COMPACT THE WASTE. The aim is to exclude as much air as possible. You want to get lots of waste into each bin: to this end you should chop up chunky waste (cabbage stalks for instance) into smaller pieces.
- 3) REPLACE THE LID TIGHTLY Seal the lid down each time you add waste and Bokashi. The lid can make an airtight seal, so push gently down on the centre of the lid then clip round the whole rim. As with compacting the waste the aim is to keep air out as much as possible so that the beneficial micro-organisms can work efficiently.
- 4) Keep adding waste in layers. Every time a layer gets to be 30–40mm thick cover the surface of the waste with a sprinkling of Bokashi Active Bran; one or two handfuls is a good amount to use. if in doubt add more Bokashi not less.
- 5) Drain the Bokashi Juice regularly. You should use Bokashi Juice as soon as you collect it as it does not store well. Dilute with 30 parts water and use it as a wonderful feed for your plants, or simply pour it down the drain! Bokashi Juice is full of beneficial beneficial microorganisms and will help keep drains and septic tanks clean and free from harmful bacteria.
- 6) Keep adding waste and Bokashi until the housing is full to overflowing. Then add one last sprinkling of Active Bran and replace the lid for the last time.

LEAVE IT UNDISTURBED FOR TWO WEEKS

Set this bin aside to let the beneficial micro-organisms get to work. You will need to leave it sealed and undisturbed for 2 weeks. However you should keep draining off any excess Bokashi Juice.

- 7) Start composting your second batch in your other bin. After two weeks the waste pickling in the first bin will be ready and that bin ready to start on your third batch.

From our Farm to your Feeder

Including Straight
Seed & Seed Mixes

Why are some of your bags plastic, not paper?

We know how important it is to limit our use of plastic so wherever we can we use paper bags. In fact all our smaller birdseed and composting bags are paper. However, with the larger sizes we have to use some plastic because of the strength and oil content of some of the feeds and seeds. So, here's what to do to HELP minimise this use.

1: Our bags are re-usable. Please ensure you collect at least 6 before returning them to us and then send them to Wiggly Wiggles Lower Blakemere Farm Blakemere Hereford HR2 9PX.

2: Our bags are recyclable.

Rest assured where we can we minimise our packing boxes and material, we shred as much cardboard for packing as we can and we compost as much as possible.

Feed The Birds!

Here at Wiggly Wiggles, we often get asked about what food is suitable to put out for particular wild birds. Whilst it is impossible to provide a definitive list, I will try to give some bird feeding hints and tips here.

Seed eating birds have strong beaks and can remove the husks from seed with hard shells (such as black sunflower seeds). Birds that normally eat soft foods or insects will be unable to do this. In the average garden you will have bird visitors of both types so it is a good idea to cater for all. If you aren't sure which seed to feed, a good mixed seed is the safest bet.

If you find that feeding seeds is messy you can buy huskless seed, which contains only the seed hearts.

It is likely that the most common seed eating birds you will find in your garden are sparrows and finches that prefer the smaller seeds. Goldfinches are particularly attracted to niger seed, which must be fed in an appropriate feeder.

Wheat and grains are likely to draw in pigeons, doves and pheasants from miles] around and could make you unpopular with your neighbours!

Peanuts are rich in fat and popular with the likes of tits, greenfinches, sparrows, nuthatches and woodpeckers.

Mealworms, waxworms, worms and insects are loved by birds such as robins, blackbirds, thrushes, tits and nuthatches. Feeding live food in the spring helps during the breeding season as they provide much needed protein. Tits and robins love mealworms and the latter can become very tame in exchange for their favourite snack.

Fat balls and snacks containing suet and lard are a good winter feed as birds need the high energy content to enable them to keep warm throughout coldest weather.

Whatever seed or bird food you buy it should be of a good quality and, most importantly, fresh. Mouldy food can cause respiratory infections in birds and stale food could harbour the salmonella bacteria, which can kill.

Good quality peanuts should always be fed as poor grade ones may contain a natural toxin, called aflatoxin, which can kill birds. In addition, you should never feed birds any food containing salt, such as salted peanuts or cooked rice.

Sensational Suets

A whole range of Fats and Suets - perfect for winter feeding!

Flutter Butter + Feeders

Is it the nutty aroma? Or is it the down-to-earth goodness that birds sniff out?

There's something about Flutter Butter that's absolutely irresistible. Birds love peanut butter. But what's great on your toast is bad for birds – ordinary peanut butter has too much salt. Rich, nutritious Flutter Butter is naturally low in salt and gives birds a protein boost.

Simply twist a jar into our Flutter Butter
Feeder to provide an instant feeding point. Ideally use the Flutter Butter feeder to dispense your butter or site the the jar securely on your bird table.

Available In Original, Buggy + Fruity.

Three Reasons why we think you'll love Our Suet Pellets.

1. Birds need to burn more calories in the winter just to stay warm. Suet is a perfect hi-energy and fatty food!
2. It's quick and easy to feed!
Simply pop in a feeder on your table.
3. As I'm sure your garden birds will agree, Suet Pellets are super tasty. Especially these ones which include mealworms!

Mealworm

We Love Live Mealworms!

Live foods are absolutely best for garden birds to feed their young. Lots of different species of birds love mealworms. House sparrows are often first to the tray, but you can expect robins, wrens, blackbirds and tits to be queuing up for their daily treat. Live food should be fed all year round. With our changing weather patterns, insects are often in short supply, so having a stock of live food in your fridge or garage (or shed) can be a life-saver for your birds.

Why feed live mealworms?

Mealworms are a great all-year birdfood, as they are 48% crude protein and 40% fat, but they're most important during the spring and early summer when chicks are in the nest. Flightless chicks can't leave the nest to get a drink, so their only source of water is through the food their parents deliver. Seeds are dry, so live food, worms and insects, are by far the best food.

When should I feed live mealworms?

Live foods are very nutritious for a lot of bird species and you can feed all year round. However, there are two key times to feed live food: Winter and in the Breeding Season.

How do I feed my birds mealworms?

To feed some mealworms, simply sieve off the bran and pop them into a steep-sided, shallow container (see online for our full range) like our robin feeder or our mealworm dish. *instructions are enclosed, of course. By the way, it may take a while for the birds to get used to them, but they will!

Which birds like mealworms?

Most garden birds like many different foods. Here's a quick guide to the birds that particularly enjoy live food; Blackbirds, Blackcaps, Blue tits, Dunnocks, Great tits, House sparrows, Long-tailed tits, Robins, Song thrushes, Starlings & Wrens!

Live Mealworms

Live Mealworms (Tenebrio molitor) are our best selling live food, and the number one choice for feeding wild birds. They are the larvae of the Flour Beetle a native British insect which eats flour, meal, grain and other related crops.

- Very popular with wild birds.
- Consists of over 50% crude protein
- Completely safe and natural to use.

Mealworms can easily be stored in a garage or utility room because they are clean and odourless. They keep well at room temp. To store them for longer transfer them to the warmest part of your fridge, away from the icebox.

Approx 230 worms per 40g .

These feeders are the Number ONE for your garden birds!

A hygienic feeder means healthier birds. The Revolutionary Ring-Pull - One Feeders are incredibly easy to clean, saving precious time and effort every time you refill. Just twist off the base and pull the pin. Every part comes apart in seconds, a unique trick that no other feeder can match.

With models for seeds, peanuts or niger, you'll find the perfect feeder for your garden.

These feeders can be hung or mounted on and birdtable or feeding station. For complete peace of mind they are covered by a two year manufacturers warranty.

Also include Owners Guide - Packed with useful tips on filling, siting and cleaning. Won't crack or fade in sunlight - Styled in tough metal mesh and ABS.

The One Feeder - Niger Seed

This model features specially-sized ports for the tiny niger seed that goldfinches relish.

For a quick clean each time you refill, the twist-off base removes to let uneaten husks and seeds escape. For a more thorough clean, just pull the pin and all feeder parts separate.
