

THE THINKER

© Ronnie Taheny Nov 2009

Where do you get off?
Is your escape a search for fate and the danger wild enough?
We'll see you off
But keep in mind your solitude's fine but it's better spent with us.

Head on hand you sit, a sculpture that won't fit
But staying here will swallow you.
Brilliance is a curse, in your case slightly worse
Your need to know, it follows you.
You go it all alone, open up your great unknown
Do you find us kind of shallow?

You go and fill the world up with something better (we're thinking about you).
Shake us up till we're thinking straighter (I'm thinking about you too).
Wake us up if it takes forever (keep thinking, keep thinking).
Who could be part of your adventure?
You've got yourself some thinking to do.

Why would you get off?
While you tread out a razor's-edge of the life we're dreaming of
How will you get off?
When you find your curious mind and your hunger's had enough?

Watch you disappear to face some new frontier,
Shadows never bother you.
Our lives run parallel and maybe just as well
You're not an act to follow.
The scholar here is you - we wish that we were too
Do you find us kind of hollow?

All I wanna say to you is go on out and think it thro.
