CAMPING ADVENTURE

This is the life! Camping in the wilderness and spending time outdoors with family and friends is more than just relaxing, it's rejuvenating. But how did camping become so popular? Thomas Hiram Holding, and British travelling tailor, is often seen as the father of modern camping, thanks to his adventurous spirit in popularizing different types of camping. He even wrote The Campers Handbook in 1908, to share his passion of the great outdoors with the world. Breathe in the deep mountain air and stretch those tight muscles in the warm sunlight to prepare for your next best camping adventure in this folk art puzzle.

1. The first motorized campers were built in 1910 and were called "auto campers" or "camping trailers." Today we call them RV's and love every inch of them.
2. Who doesn't love barbequing in the wild, especially on this grill?
3. One of the most comforting things while camping, is a blazing fire and roasting hot dogs and marshmallows.
4. I know lady, sometimes reading a map is extremely difficult.
5. Insects can be amazing, like crickets. They can calculate the temperature during the spring and summer months. You can calculate the temperature by simply counting the number of chirps you hear in 14 seconds. Then, add 40 to that number to find out the Fahrenheit temperature.
6. Watch out for skunks when you're camping!
7. Whether you like long or short hikes, just make sure to stop every once in a while and take in Mother Nature's beauty.
8. Canoeing was originally a form of long distance transportation in North America, the Amazon basin and Polynesia. Today it's used for sport, relaxation, and even canoe camping.
9. Did you know that National Go Fishing Day is celebrated annually on June 18?
10. Tents have been around for millennia's, developing in to lightweight shelters that help travelers survive harsh winters and blistering summers.
11. Even Bigfoot is getting in on the camping action.
