

HOUSE OF SEVEN GABLES

The moon has risen on this eerie Halloween night, with trick-or-treaters parading and ready to bring some fright. Be warned as the trees stretch down, grabbing at any who peek inside the windows aglow with shadows and candlelight. Heed the pumpkins warning, and you may survive the House of Seven Gables this festive night. Are there more tricks than treats to come if you venture in? Take a look and you can begin!

1. The House of Seven Gables—the Turner House built in 1668. Made famous by Nathaniel Hawthorne's 1851 novel.
2. The candlelight reaps a grim shadow in this window.
3. Is that Mr. Hyde hiding? I just don't know.
4. The milk in this container is beyond curdled, yikes!
5. Pumpkin boy spilled on a witch, what a sight.
6. Ok, snakes are creepy with their slimy scales.
7. Is this a warlock or pirate? It sure is hard to tell.
8. Black cat prowling at the window pane.
9. One dead rat who has seen his day.
10. Black beaked raven answers, "Nevermore."
11. A light on the evil eye through an open door.
12. "Hoo, Who's watching over this Samhain Night?"
13. This night cloaked crow is one of five in sight.
14. Bats in the belfry and bats in the trees.
15. There are four cats hidden that I can see.
16. This spider, "sat beside her" and the outcome we know.
17. This mystery remains to be solved, "Wha . . . wha . . . what's glaring from that hole?"
18. Rats on the rafters scurry away.
19. This fella here has seen better days.
20. The arching black cat surely means . . .
21. . . . a conjuring witch must be on the scene.
22. Yes, this is Salem with witches galore. As many today as in days of yore.
