

KETCHIKAN

As the southernmost city in Alaska, Ketchikan is known as the “Salmon Capitol of the World.” Even though it is the fifth most populous city in the state, Eric has captured the essence of this fishing “town.” Brightly painted wooden houses stand against a lush green backdrop of evergreens and mountains. Salmon abound—jumping out of the water, being caught by fishermen and children alike—even an eagle gets his share. The detail and colors in this painting make it perfect to enjoy as a giclée canvas reprint or as a puzzle.

1. The Great Alaskan Lumberjack Show—#1 shore excursion in Ketchikan.
2. Perfect Partners is a precious metal jewelry store that was established in 1986.
3. Ketchikan is surrounded by the 17 million-acre of the Tongass National Forest.
4. Dolly's House Museum is also known as the “den of iniquity.”
5. Creek Street—popular, charming shopping area built over Ketchikan Creek.
6. Alaskan State flag was designed by a thirteen-year-old orphan.
7. Steadman Bridge is a common fishing spot.
8. Inside Passage Curios is a part of the famous Tongass Trading Triangle.
9. World famous “Welcome to Alaska's 1st City” sign.
10. *Ketchikan Fish House—freshest fish available
11. Ketchikan has over 80 authentic Native American totem poles, beautiful.
12. Fishermen come from all over the world to fish the Alaskan waters.
13. This Eagle totem greets disembarking tourists.
14. The Tlingit, Tsimshian, and Haida people lived in the area for centuries.
15. “Ketchikan” comes from the Tlingit word “Kitschk-hin” which means “thundering wings of an eagle.” Can you find the 22 eagles in this painting?
16. Eric's telltale happy fish—in this case Alaskan Salmon.
17. Orca, seals, otters, and other animals migrate through the inside passage.