RATTLE&FLASHING

Protean appealing action • New-type “Inchiku”

“Inchiku” is one of the most popular jiggging rigs in Japan. At its basic form, it is comprised of an octopus skirt, hook, and sinker. Now we have added the effects of glow and sound to attract even more fish! It is our specialty. Lumica’s new-type Inchiku, “Xtrada Freestyle Inchiku”, has been tested for the use in reefy areas, swift current areas, and flat bottoms. The glow and sound generated from the slit on the jig head, sleek body, and appealing action movements enabled by the plate type eye hole attracts the targeted fish.

SHINKEI-JIME, THE ART OF DESTROYING NERVE TO EXTEND FRESHNESS

Shinkeijime Long Fish Spike Wire Tool Combo Set

Put on thick gloves to prevent live fish from getting burned by the heat of your hands.

1

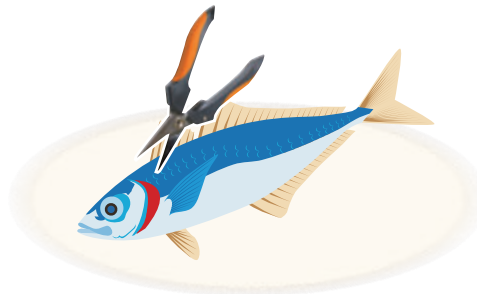

Place the fish on a sponge mat to avoid raging. If the fish moves violently;

1: It causes overheating and the fish meat will get bruised.

2: ATP will be exhausted very quickly.

3: pH of fish meat drops/becomes acidic. ↗

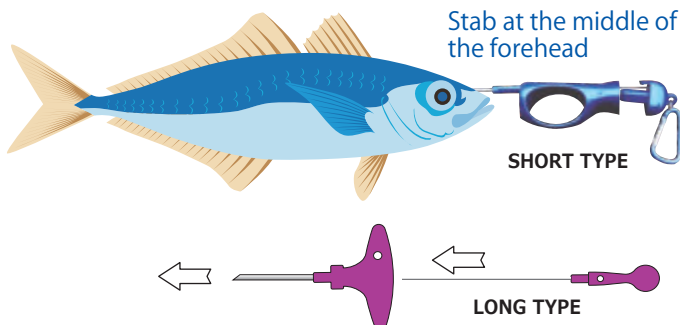

2

Open a gill cover and sever the gill with scissors. At this point, the fish's heart is still beating and makes bleeding smooth. Even after cutting the gill blood vessel, the spinal cord is still alive and consuming ATP. ↘

3

SHINKEI-JIME

Stab at the middle of the forehead

SHORT TYPE

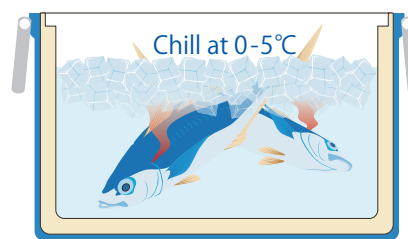

LONG TYPE

Use the skull penetration tube spike first, then insert the steel wire from the back of the tube. The wire is lead into the neural canal automatically. Push and wiggle the wire toward tail to destroy the spinal cord entirely.

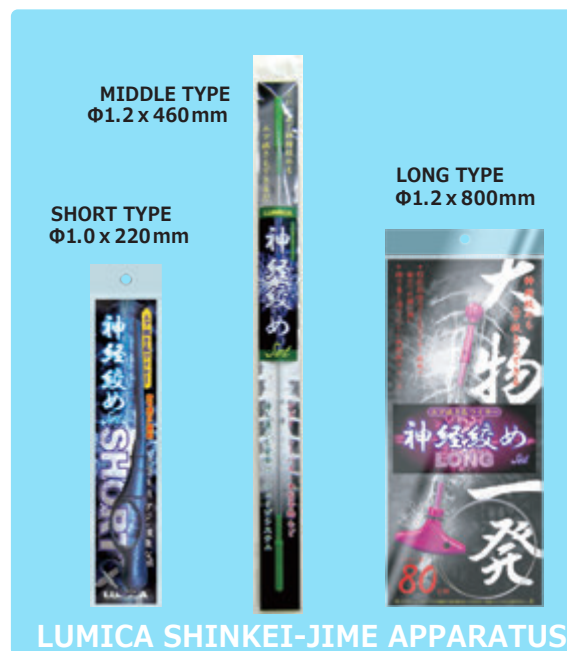

If the spinal cord is not destroyed, it will send electrical impulses mistakenly to the muscles after about 30 minutes of severance. Impulses make dead fish rage and remaining blood seep into the tissue. Blood decreases transparency and increases fishy odor. ↗

4

After death, biochemical reactions progress in the body and damages fish meat in a few minutes. To stop these reactions, put the fish into iced seawater immediately for 5-10 min to chill deep inside of the body. After chilling, keep the fish at 5-10 °C in a cooler box for producing "Umami".

Sliding Float Rig

Set the stop-knot at a desired depth. Tie it small enough not to catch on any guide rings as the stop-knot can be reeled onto the spool during rig retrieval.

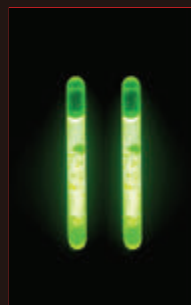

Stick the attached slider-top into the top-hole to add more visibility in sunlight.

Use the slider-top upside-down or place a Starlite SL-5 into the hole when using it as a fixed float.

Total rated loading weight: #2=11g (0.4oz), #3=15g (0.5oz), #5=22g (0.8oz), including the sinker, swivel, leader line, hook and bait.

Attach a Starlite SL-5 20cm above the sinker:

- 1: as a strike indicator
- 2: to help prevent tangles when casting
- 3: two lights indicate the direction and angle of the rig
- 4: to find where the bait is drifting and with what speed and depth
- 5: as a bumper between the float and the sinker
- 6: as a float-stopper to avoid loss if the line snaps
- 7: to catch the tidal stream as a sea anchor
- 8: to attract fish from a distance

Magnifies Bait Movement

Small line motions can be amplified 3-fold thanks to low pivot point and leverage.

Float is Stable in Water

Comparison of the exposed volume of the float buoyancy which juts out of the water:

Teardrop-shaped float is small and strong against wind.

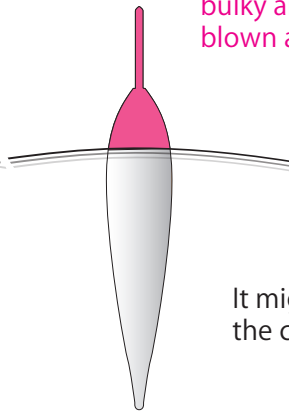

Can catch and ride the tidal stream even at neap tide.

Just a small force is needed to pull the float under water. Fish bite without hesitation.

Wedge-shaped float is bulky and easily blown away.

It might ride the current.

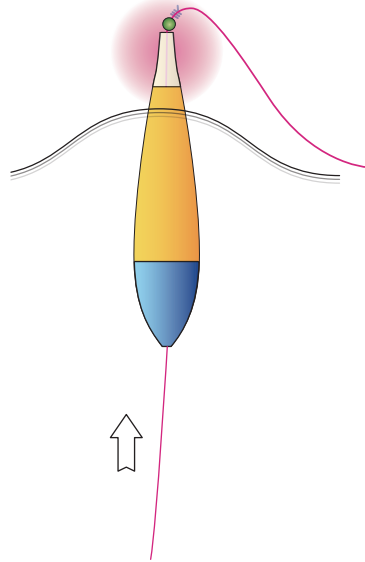

Strong force is required to pull it down and fish often let go of the bait.

Minimal Bait Movement

Float at the top of a wave ↔ Float at the bottom of a wave

Pulls up rig.

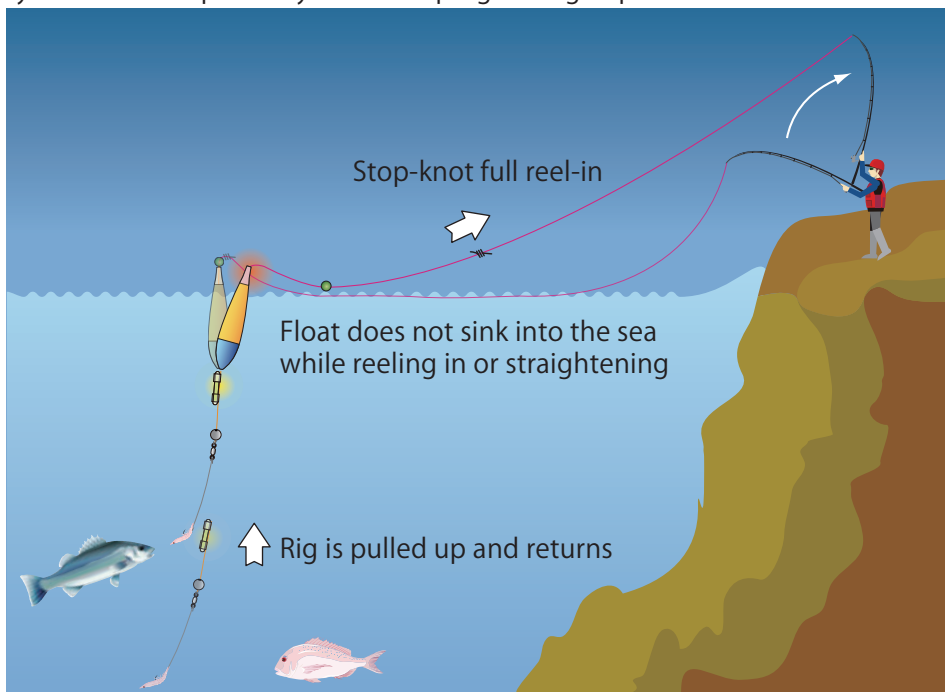

Ocean surface tension grabs and holds the mainline.

Easy to Mend

Float should be leaded above the ocean floor cover, and the mainline should not affect the drift of the rig. To prevent missing out on possible bites, take the slack out and keep tension on the line, to sense any small bites. Since the sliding float does not dive even when pulling the line, you can mend perfectly while keeping the rig in position.
