

outpost

It feels like we knitters wait forever for Fall to get here. It's sometimes hard for us to explain to others how much we pine for that first noticeable chill in the air. Or the first time we reach for a knitted cardigan. These are the signs of Autumn picking up her torch. It's the time of year for us to take up our wools again and put our hands to good use.

This Fall I'm joined by designers Leila Raabe and Michele Wang, both long-time friends of Brooklyn Tweed. Last Spring, I invited each of them to come aboard as members of the Brooklyn Tweed inhouse design team and, much to my delight, they each accepted. The three of us have been collaborating on knitwear ever since.

As Brooklyn Tweed grows, I am continually reminded how important it is to have the right people to make good things happen. In terms of providing design support for our yarns, it's been so energizing to develop the work as a team. We're all hoping you enjoy the first handful of designs we've put together for you this season.

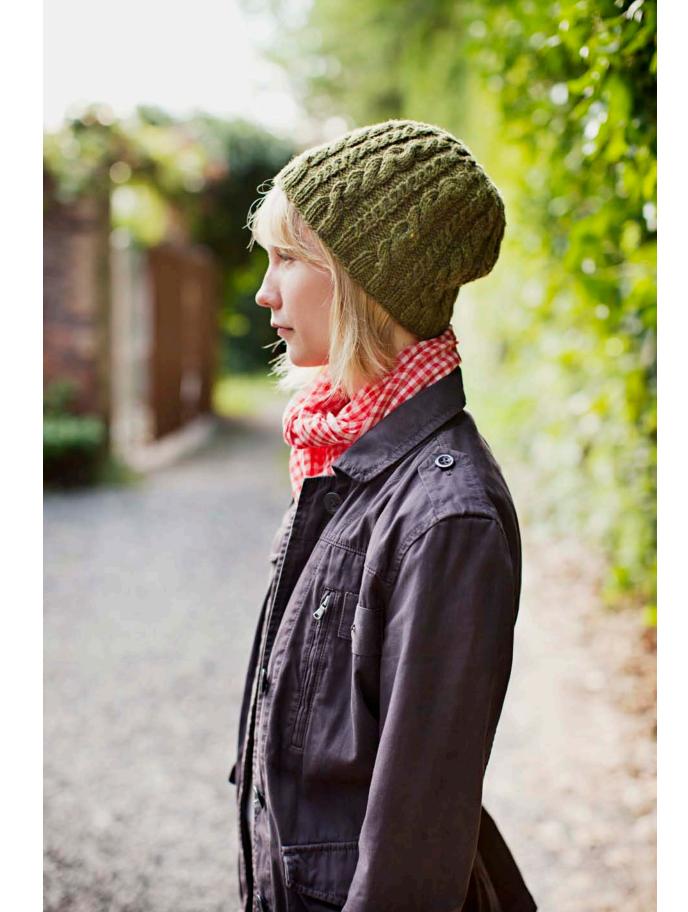

Tucked among the following pages you'll find photographs of our 16-piece Fall design collection. We were thinking a lot about surface texture as we created this group, and you'll see plenty of it within the designs.

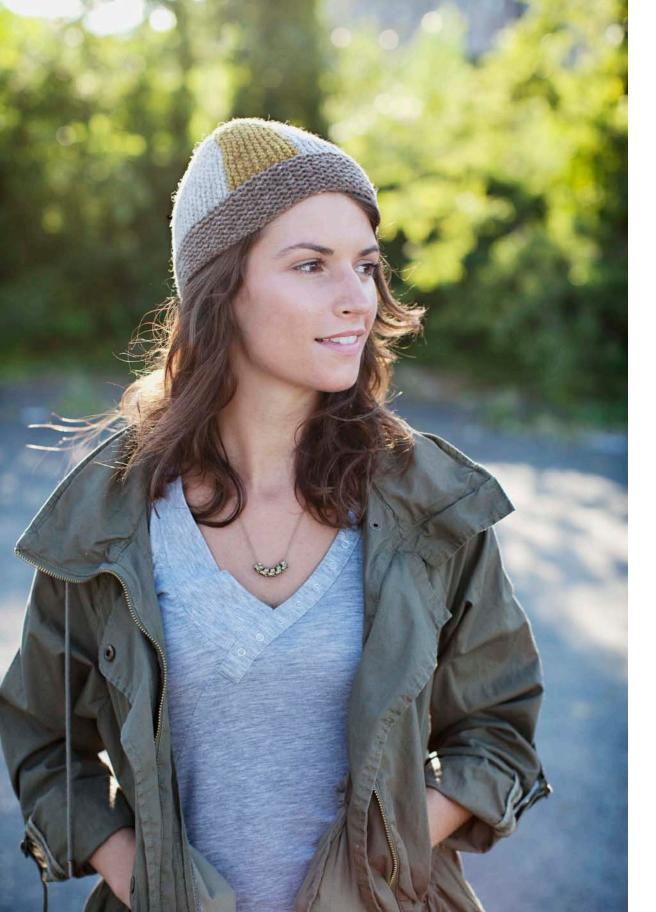

We've also striven to provide a variety of project sizes and commitment-levels, from a one-skein pair of textured mitts to garments for men and women, and plenty of hats scattered throughout. (There can never be enough of them in any Fall coat closet.) All designs are available now as digital downloads on www.brooklyntweed.net – see the Catalog section at the back of the look book for more pattern information and direct links to each of the individual designs.

We are always so grateful to be able to share our creative work with you – thank you.

All my very best,

Jared Flood

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

We'd like to thank our wonderful test/sample knitters for their wonderful work and dedication: Jennifer Coard, Christine Craig, Roseann Mauroni, Veronica Parsons, & Michele Saunders. We couldn't do it without you!

Many thanks also to our wonderful models: Maria, Lani, Matt, Tessa B. and Tessa S. for wearing all the wool so well.
