2 Placing the Harness on the Dog

Start by unfastening the large back buckles, then gently slide the harness over your dog's neck. Guide the female buckle through the elastic loops, following the illustration above, and then securely buckle the harness.

Important! Ensure that the head loop rests at the base of your dog's neck, on the lower bony part, as shown in the picture above.

Start by adjusting the tri-glides on both the left and right sides, making sure they are aligned and parallel.

Tidy up any excess straps by threading them through the elastic loops to prevent dangling. Be cautious not to make the harness too tight during this process.

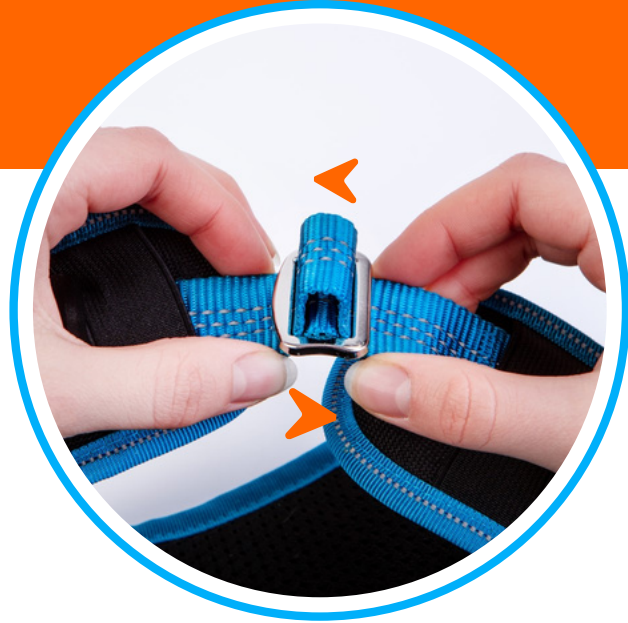

To verify the correct positioning, you should be able to slide no more than two fingers between the harness and your dog's body.

4 Adjusting the Belly Straps

Once you've secured and adjusted the side parts, check the horizontal belly strap. Use the tri-glide on the belly strap to create enough space for two fingers to fit comfortably between the harness and your dog's belly.

Tidy up any excess strap by threading it through the elastic loop and the back strap loop.

5 Final checks

Once the harness is in place on your dog, verify that all adjustments are correct, providing a comfortable and secure fit with no loose or overly tight areas.

A helpful reference is the padded chest D-ring attachment point, which should align perfectly with the center of your dog's chest, as demonstrated in the image below

If you've followed these steps, congratulations! Your harness is now correctly fitted, and you're ready for a walk with your furry friend. After your walk, remember to check the harness for any loosened parts.

With new harnesses, it may take a few uses to settle into place. Ensure proper alignment and comfort for your dog by periodically checking and adjusting each strap using the two-finger method.

Enjoy your walks together!
