Making scents

Brand new, or with a twist, setting sail with designer perfumes is the right choice, says Olivia Falcon and Le Male, £58 (far right) by Jean Paul Gaultier, from Selfridges, selfridges.com Ahoy there! Gaultier's cult bottles get a pirate makeover. There's swashbuckling Le Male, a macho minty spritz with woody undertones for men, and sexy Classique, a blossomy, floral bouquet for women. Soir d'Orient, £165 by Sisley, from the House of Fraser, houseoffraser.co.uk Inspired by the Amalfi Coast; a waft of figs, orange blossom and cedar.

Blanche Immortelle, £200 by Atelier Cologne, from Harvey Nichols, harveynichols.com

Parisians are going mad for these cult colognes; here it's a splash of bergamot, mandarin and mimosa.

Ombre Indigo, £75 by Olfactive Studio, from Fenwick, fenwick.co.uk Mysterious and smoky, this is a blend of woods and smoked resins laced with tuberose and saffron; high noon on deck
