

SHOWCASING ROYAL ELEGANCE

Designer Pavan Anand, the man behind the label Dagmar, showcased his latest collection 'A Parisian Affair' at Collage, Chennai in association with Wedding Vows. Rajashri Ramesh spoke to him about the collection.

With a client list that includes Nicole Kidman, Goldie Hawn and the royalty of Morocco, Dagmar is a label in a league of its own. His recent collection, 'A Parisian Affair' displayed at Collage, Chennai witnessed esteemed guests like Aila Sharma, owner of Isadore, a high fashion boutique in the city. The ensemble beautifully marries Parisian and Indian sensibilities with each piece juxtaposing the elite French couture and the majesty of Indian royalty.

Pavan Anand, CEO of internationally acclaimed jewellery brand 'Dagmar' elevated the jewellery industry in 2004 with high-end line of semi-precious jewellery. After having completed his degree in Architecture, he let himself delve into jewellery and came up with a cutting edge and extremely fashion forward, chic line of leather based jewellery pieces. With exclusivity and immaculate styling, the ace designer delivers to his customers an unforgettable experience.

The 35-year-old designer this time drew his inspiration from the passion showed by the 'Nizam' and 'Patiala' kingdoms towards their valuable baubles. Their key jewellery elements, picked and worked with the lightness of Maria Antoinette and Louis XVI to give an international styling are what best describes the collection's pieces. Taking a step further to perfectly craft the jewellery collection, Pavan worked for over three years with Princess Jyotsna Singh, the granddaughter of Maharaja Bhupinder Singh of Patiala.

The 'Parisian Affair' ensemble comprises of Limited Special Edition pieces meticulously crafted in silver and semi-precious stones accentuated with Tahitian Pearls. One of the key features of the collection is the exclusive trinkets created by Pavan with 'Simulated Colombian Emeralds'. ●
