How the process works:

We work with clients to produce high quality apparel, merchandise, and/or promotional materials so that we can help women transition out of homelessness through our Residency Mindset program.

The production process is straightforward, but often requires some back and forth to confirm important details and decisions. Once these details are established, we create and send digital and physical mock ups so that clients can feel confident in the final result. We offer numerous forms of embellishment and customization, including screen print, embroidery, sublimation, DTG (Direct to Garment), and cut and sew.

How your order makes a difference:

Employee Testimonial:

“Residency has changed the trajectory of my life. Working in a supportive environment has helped me become a better problem-solver and an all-around more disciplined person, both at work and at home. I recently earned my GED and have since enrolled in my first college class. I appreciate learning from Tyler and Hughie, and I want to improve because they set an example of how to work hard with compassion and discipline.”

-Nikki Moore, Inventory Manager and Production Assistant

Since 2007, we’ve worked to help people transition out of homelessness in Los Angeles. Through research and personal experience, we’ve created an environment and system that allows us to uniquely tailor our support to each person we work with. Through our Mindset program, we offer practical education and work training, including guidance in financial security, computer skills, and problem solving. The second component of our Mindset program involves offering opportunities for transformative experience, in which we challenge (in a healthy and supportive way) those we work with to gain experience in situations that would otherwise be foreign and daunting. We see transformative experience as the foundation of growth and mobility. Overall, we design a life-track for each individual to address areas of need and to guide them toward a life of greater security, sustainability, and wellbeing.
