

Wilson & Dorset

Sheepskin Reimagined.

Traditionally overlooked as a tourist souvenir, a closer look into the properties of sheepskin reveals a wonder fibre that demands its place in modern living.

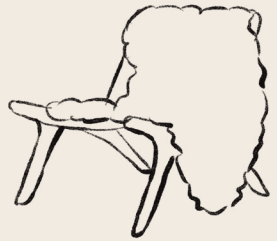

The experience of sitting in or touching sheepskin is unparalleled, providing a deep primal sense of comfort and relaxation. Like wool, it provides warmth in winter and is cooling in summer making it suitable in all climates and seasons.

It's durability lends itself to both outdoor and indoor settings while the fact that it is stain resistant, fire resistant and hypoallergenic ensures it withstands a lifetime of wear. Our skins are a byproduct of New Zealand's meat industry and at the end of their life, naturally decompose.

We believe its possibilities and uses are endless, and hope you will take the opportunity to experience the feeling for yourself.

About Wilson & Dorset

Wilson & Dorset design primal moments that restore the human spirit and connect us back to ourselves and each other.

Headquartered in Wanaka, New Zealand, the company is a reflection of its founders Amanda Dorset and Ben Wilson's values – both South Island born, they explored professional lives in London and Sydney but were drawn back to Central Otago to live a life in reverence to nature. Living in the secluded Dublin Bay, looking over Lake Wanaka, Wilson & Dorset products can be found draped over the chairs by the outdoor fire and dragged across the living room into the most comfortable configuration.
