

Hello
my name is

TOO COOL FOR SCHOOL

Introducing our fourth collection

Too Cool For School

In every day lies a lesson

Showcasing every day objects that remind us of childhood

Featuring nostalgia mixed with the promise of a fresh start

Emcompassing the magic of new friends, new learnings and new experiences

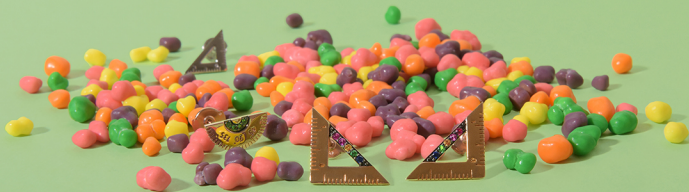

Reminding us that we are constantly evolving.

Nadine Ghosp is an award-winning fine-jewelry designer attracting worldwide attention for her hip and bold jewelry designs.

Her brand resonates with both Luxury and Street Style audiences and her clients include Karl Lagerfeld, Beyonce, Ariana Grande, Pink, Pharrell, Nigo.

She has won the Innovation Award at Couture, and was the VOGUE Fashion Prize winner in the Middle East. Yet her path to jewelry was not conventional. After pursuing a dual degree in Economics and Art at Stanford University, Nadine received her GIA certification, worked in Boston Consulting Group's Luxury Goods Practice and completed a management rotation through Luxury Maison Hermes.

Her career path celebrates the union between creativity and business. Rose gold is her signature; the perfect balance of femininity and elegance. NCEJ celebrates three years in the business and launches her fourth collection:

Too Cool For School, highlighting the continued light heartedness and color theme deeply engrained in the brand's DNA.
