VIVETTE MILSON-WHYTE, RAYMOND A. OENBRING, AND BRIANNE JAQUETTE
TO RECEIVE THE MLA'S MINA P. SHAUGHNESSY PRIZE FOR *CREOLE
COMPOSITION: ACADEMIC WRITING AND RHETORIC IN THE ANGLOPHONE CARIBBEAN

New York, NY – 14 December 2020 – The Modern Language Association of America today announced it is awarding its thirty-sixth Mina P. Shaughnessy Prize to Vivette Milson-Whyte, senior lecturer in language, linguistics, and philosophy at the University of the West Indies, Mona; Raymond A. Oenbring, assistant professor of English and linguistics at the University of the Bahamas; and Brianne Jaquette, associate professor in the Department of Language, Literature, Mathematics, and Interpreting at Western Norway University of Applied Sciences, for their book Creole Composition: Academic Writing and Rhetoric in the Anglophone Caribbean, published by Parlor Press. The prize is awarded for an outstanding work on language, culture, literature, or literacy with strong application to the teaching of English.

The prize is one of eighteen awards that will be presented on 9 January 2021, during the association's annual convention, to be held online. The members of this year's selection committee were Mary McAleer Balkun (Seton Hall Univ.), chair; Jean Ferguson Carr (Univ. of Pittsburgh); and Bruce Horner (Univ. of Louisville). The committee's citation for the winning book reads:

Creole Composition: Academic Writing and Rhetoric in the Anglophone Caribbean, edited by Vivette Milson-Whyte, Raymond Oenbring, and Brianne Jaquette, is politically attuned, well researched, and cohesive. It is both ambitious and focused, casting a wide net around the conditions for the teaching of composition, the technology and equipment needed, and the problem and value of resistance. While the focus is almost exclusively on specific issues faced by those living and working in the Caribbean, the analyses have clear implications for the teaching of composition more broadly. Creole Composition is also a model for local communities to reflect on and study themselves, their teaching practices, their students, and their institutions and to do so in close dialogue with theories of language, pedagogy, rhetoric and composition, and social context.

The Modern Language Association of America and its 24,000 members in 100 countries work to strengthen the study and teaching of languages and literature. Founded in 1883, the MLA provides opportunities for its members to share their scholarly findings and teaching experiences with colleagues and to discuss trends in the academy. The MLA sustains one of the finest publication programs in the humanities, producing a variety of publications for language and literature professionals and for the general public.
