The Pregnancy glow is an unfortunate myth for some, thanks to skyrocketing hormones, more than 50% of pregnant women develop a “pregnancy mask,” the darkening of pigmentation around the mouth, cheeks, and forehead also known as melasma or hyperpigmentation, and many also develop acne. Exhaustion and water retention may lead to under-eye pouches, while increased blood ow can cause spider veins across the face of about two-thirds of pregnant women experience the dreadful pregnancy symptoms.

Active Ingredients & Benefits

Mandelic Acid

Mandelic acid is the gentlest of all the AHA's because it has the largest molecule size. By nature of its size, it helps slow the absorption into the skin, thereby causing less irritation, redness, flakiness, and dry skin than other acids. Mandelic acid is well tolerated by nearly all skin types with the additional benefits of brightening the skin. In fact, people with acne, sensitive skin, and even those with rosacea can benefit from a gentle Mandelic treatment. Studies indicate that Mandelic acid has a structure similar to some antibiotics, thereby offering anti-bacterial properties to the surface of the skin.

Skin brighteners with natural anti-inflammatory, astringent and flavonoid properties.

Malva Sylvestris (Mallow) Extract, Mentha Piperita (Peppermint) Leaf Extract, Primula Veris Extract, Alchemilla Vulgaris Extract, Veronica Ocinalis Extract, Melissa Ocinalis Leaf Extract, Achillea Millefolium Extract.
