What is Butcher's Broom and how will it help me?

Butcher's Broom is so named because butchers used it to clean their cutting boards. This herb has a long history of use by many cultures and was traditionally used for the circulatory system.

Butcher's Broom contains important flavonoids such as rutin, which is a natural antioxidant. The body uses antioxidants to protect cells from oxidative stress, otherwise known as free radical damage. It also contains saponins, which offer a variety of benefits.
