

Chapter 1 - Pre-existence of Christ

Many have written about pre-existence especially in connection to Yahushua to confirm His being God incarnate and relate how special for humanity was His role for incarnating into flesh form. Those that have covered this topic usually do so from a strictly canonical perspective utilizing references which are centered solely upon the Old and New Testament in explaining the association between the Son and the Father and how the two are One. I will however reference many texts that many people have never heard about nor chanced to have read, in order to elaborate upon the foundation of the biblical canon, and confer information detailing preexistence so that the reader can understand that not only is this topic canonical but that it is indeed sourced in a myriad of other places and passages not usually connected to this revelation.

The pre-existence of Christ has been an area of speculation since even before His celebrated and memorialized resurrection and ascension into heaven. No other person has had more written about His life and what He did while in the flesh than our Savior Messiah. Many individuals over the course of hundreds, even thousands of years have dedicated themselves to understanding who Christ was and why it was that He came into the flesh. Many wonder was He just a man like us or was there something uniquely special about Him that allowed Him to live a sinless life and reveal the secrets of heaven while physically present within the flesh. Did He have a similar childhood and evolution to manhood as all other children?, or did He even young, embody God incarnate? Was He able to perform miracles even as a babe and if so what was His childhood like? Why does the canon not include reference to His early life and why are only the last years of His life shared in the canonized gospel?

Ever since His walk upon the earth countless individuals have dedicated large portions of their time delving into all aspects of His prophetic coming, birth, life, death, and resurrection to try to confirm or disparage what was unique about His character, and why He was referenced as being the only begotten Son of God.

For those interested in learning more about Christ's childhood and whether He and those around Him knew that He was God incarnate even at a young age, I would recommend one read with discernment the Forgotten Books of Eden, part of the Forbidden Books of the Bible series which contains within them, the Protoevangelium of James, a collection of infancy gospels connected to the early life of Christ. They are said to date back to 145 A. D. and are attributed to James, the half-brother of Yahushua, a son of Joseph from a previous marriage.

The stories begin with the life of Mary detailing why she as a 14-year-old virgin was chosen betrothed to Joseph an elderly widowed man chosen by the Most High to be her guardian. They also contain early accounts of Christ's infancy detailing stories of how Mary used His bathwater and baby blanket to heal the children of other mothers from sickness or disease. Other stories portray a young Yahushua performing miracles during the early years of His life which in my mind clearly shows that He and the Father were one and how He held authority as Yahuwah incarnate even as a baby and young child. If you are like me and want to know everything one can learn about Christ's life including His childhood which is largely left out of the official canon, one must study the extra-biblical texts to detail such accounting. If one first establishes a solid Biblical foundation based upon the current King James Bible, then the extra-biblical texts will provide additional insight and you will be able to discern what is valid or embellishment.

In discussing Christ's preexistence my hope is to confirm to the reader how He not only had prior embodiment before coming into the flesh but that as the Son of God and Word of the Father, was the One that spoke or sang the universes (one verse) into being and that He and the Father were one even before His flesh embodiment/incarnation. I think it important to search out insight everywhere one can so that in piecing together all of the passages which speak about the fullness of His being, one can come to a clear understanding as to what made Christ so special and uniquely different from all other created and incarnated spirits. Know that I only include in my books information and wisdom which compliments and never contradicts a correct understanding of the Holy Bible as we have it today.

In that hour was this Son of man invoked before the Lord of spirits, and his name in the presence of the Ancient of days. Before the sun and the signs were created, before the stars of heaven were formed, his name was invoked in the presence of the Lord of spirits. A support shall he be for the righteous and the holy to lean upon, without falling; and he shall be the light of nations. He shall be the hope of those whose hearts are troubled. All, who dwell on earth, shall fall down and worship before him; shall bless and glorify him, and sing praises to the name of the Lord of spirits.

Therefore the Elect and the Concealed One existed in his presence, before the world was created, and for ever. In his presence he existed, and has revealed to the saints and to the righteous the wisdom of the Lord of spirits; for he has preserved the lot of the righteous, because they have hated and rejected this world of iniquity, and have detested all its works and ways, in the name of the Lord of spirits. For in his name shall they be preserved; and his will shall be their life. In those days shall the kings of the earth and the mighty men, who have gained the world by their achievements, become humble in countenance. For in the day of their anxiety and trouble their souls shall not be saved; and they shall be in subjection to those whom I have chosen.

The Book of Enoch, 48:2-8, Dead Sea Scrolls

It's my opinion that in using the Old and New Testament, as a foundation of truth, and studying all of the other texts available including apocryphal, pseudepigraphal, Dead Sea, Nag Hammadi, and other extra biblical sources, that one can piece together the fullness of who Christ, is, was, and forever will be as the Alpha Omega and beginning/ending of all things. I will draw from many texts to expound upon Christ and some of the concepts I will be covering within the scope of this book especially predestination and preexistence.

For those that are new to these concepts, it is not necessary to go outside of the accepted canon in confirming what I will present here but that if one does, one can find verification of it from multitudinous other sources and as I have stated many times in my previous work, I do not hold the gnostic or extra biblical books as canon or nearly of equal standing to the word of God as laid out especially in the King James Version of the bible, which is the one I will be quoting from. Nor do I believe everything stated within other texts especially when they contradict the KJV.

I would also add that it does not matter whether one agrees or disagrees with my thesis on predestination and pre-existence as it has no bearing upon salvation whether one thinks one way or the other about what I will be writing about here. Even if you disagree with this premise or others I will be referencing, it is my hope that as followers of Christ that we need not argue harmfully or fiercely condemn one another for differing points of view if one should hold a contrasting perspective on the interpretation of certain scripture. Should someone see things differently, in the least we should honor each other as family in the fellowship of Christ and simply agree to disagree if necessary.

In my years of study I deduce, that what made Christ uniquely different from all of the angels created in heaven and other people born into the flesh world over the many epochs spanning the course of time, is that He was not one that was created but as the Word is the embodiment of Yahuwah the Father and that together as John cited They were the ones that created all of the other things of creation. Together They were the singularity and unified force from which all other things owe their existence. They are the energy, consciousness, force, and light which pervades all things invisible and visible, imperishable and perishable, immortal and mortal. Yahushua is the hosted aspect of the unseen Father, and together They are the Creator that is, has, and forever will be. God the Father is Spirit, is Light is Life. Yahushua is the only begotten Son, that was with the Father before all other things were brought into form as separate individualized entities. They as source, are the spirit from which all other things were brought into being. All other things including the angels were conceived and manifest from the intent and focus of Christ who as the Word uttered or sang the universe into being as vibration and frequency. They are the force that masterminded the grand experiment of the great mystery in unfolding of all things to being. All aspects of creation are contained in Their essence and without Them nothing could truly exist. Together we comprise the consciousness that is the Giant Family.

Much has been written about the mystification of Christ especially in association to His having come into the flesh; however most in presenting the story were not aware of key texts which may broaden the understanding of Christ's preexistence and predestiny. With the advent of the internet we as last generation have access to ancient texts most are not familiar with. I believe that as it says in scripture the spirit is being poured out on our generation and that many texts which have never been heard of or seen before by many are being brought to light so that those that are truly seeking the kingdom may have access to them so that we can gain with their help, insight into the fullness of the story which clarifies the special character of Yahushua as our Lord and King. For those that are not offended by my emphasis and inclusion of so many texts which are overlooked and little delved into, I feel certain that many of the extra-biblical texts can assist in clarifying certain esoteric passages within the canon that are connected to the topics of predestination, preexistence, and pre-election.

Of course many will demonize me for simply quoting from some of these texts as there are many who feel especially certain that no one should look outside of the canon for information about things that may not be within it. Many do not even realize that the original canon contained 80 books and not 66. There are also many individuals and groups which differ on varying aspects of theology that will criticize others when contesting which version of the canonized edition one should use for study, thus the many denominations scattered worldwide; however even with such differences I feel strongly that as a body of Christ, we should still honor one another and respect each other for varying perspectives as the commandments instruct us to do. Nobody has all of the answers nor has anyone pieced together the puzzle of truth in such way that everyone will agree wholeheartedly with them and so I believe that we should in the least respect each other for where one may be in coming to discernment on these and other revelations. I feel we should address each other not in a spirit of division but with a spirit of charity.

Then said the Jews unto him, Thou art not yet fifty years old, and hast thou seen Abraham? Jesus said unto them, verily, verily, I say unto you, Before Abraham was, I am. Then took they up stones to cast at him: but Jesus hid himself, and went out of the temple, going through the midst of them, and so passed by.

John 8:57-59, KJV

The issue of Christ's pre-existence though contained within the canon is not well-known nor debated as topic by most pastors, preachers, ministers, and students of mainstream Christianity. Many of my listeners ask me why such topics as Cain being the first born of the wicked one or the sons of God mating with the daughters of humanity to produce the giants known as men of renown, are taboo subjects which many churches and church leaders, consign to the realm of make believe? Why won't authorities on the word, whom others look to for answer on such cryptic issues, comment on such inquiries in all seriousness rather than just regard such 'mythology' as unsuitable for discussion especially if such concepts are found in the canon of the word? I can understand how mainstream church leaders especially if they have never delved into such issues in a serious way, can gloss over such topics as they do not consider them as relevant nor connected in any way to modern day life and living, but even some of whom I consider the greatest minds in the world, will not expound upon them in any meaningful way. Like the seed line of Cain and presence of the fallen angels and giants, predestination and preexistence are another one of those topics relegated fantasy by most churches and pastors.

I personally have asked many of what I consider the leading minds in the world when it comes to commentary on esoteric subject matter especially those contained within the word whether they believe that we have preexisted and most when asked, claim that there is no such reference within the bible. Some of these individuals are the most well read and well-studied individuals in the genre of esoteria with huge followings of also well researched listeners and students, yet when it comes to the issue I am writing about here they act like I am reading into the text.

Pre-existence, predestination, and pre-election are topics which even though written about thousands of years prior by the apostles and disciples of Christ, they are not usually discussed openly among church congregations, nor are they topics which are examined thoroughly by established seminaries and church authorities worldwide. Like the lineage of Cain and the connections to the fallen angels and giants, most know little about this particular issue, and yet it's my opinion that this topic is of utmost importance to the followers of Yahushua as it validates John 1 in its ramifications of Christ having been with the Father before even the foundations of this world had been laid. This